The Emperor's Letter to the Retiring Chancellor on Accepting the Resignation-What the Press Has to Say.

BERLIN, March 20 .- A special edition of the Riech Sanzeiger contains the imperial rescripts, pordially thanking Prince Bismarck for his perdially thanking Frince Bismarck for his vertices and appointing him duke of Lanen-barg, colonel-general of cavalry, and field-marshal-general; also appointing Count Her-bert Bismarck interim minister of foreign affairs, and General Von Caprivi chancellor and

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

The Vossiche Zeitung says that tension has been brought to a climax by the fact that the destinles of Europe have been suddenly de-prived of their axis. Prince Bismarck was a guarantee of peace. History will preserve the memory of his services in the cause of peace. His successor will be compelled to imme-diately deal with the question of a reduction of the military burden in the interests of peace. The Nation witnesses the retirement of Prince Bismarck with regret, but without anxiety, hoping that his life will still be long and happy and that he will be able to follow the development of the country.

The North German Gazette, Prince Bismark's coron gives prominence to the marck's organ, gives prominence to the announcement that General Von Caprivi has succeeded Prince Bismarck as chancellor. It also gives equal prominence to the report that the general will succeed Prince Bismarck as president of the Prussian ministerial council. president of the Prussian ministerial council.

The Gazette denies that Prince Bismarck's resignation was in any way connected with differences between the emperor and himself on labor questions. It was mainly due, the paper says, to constitutional questions—such as the limits of ministerial responsibility and the relations of the president of the Prussian ministry with his colleagues.

The Gazette says that Prince Bismarck never opposed the labor conference in the staatsrath, but that, on the contrary, it was at his suggestion that the conference was initiated and that the staatsrath's assistance was asked to consider the labor question.

The National Gazette says that the emperor, in a long letter to Prince Bismarck, extols his services to the state and expresses profound personal gratitude.

personal gratitude.

The Kreuz Zeitung says that General Von Caprivi has returned to Hanover, and that he accepted the chancellorship after two weeks negotiations.

The National Gazette, referring to Prince Princ

The National Gazette, referring to Frince Bismarck's remarks to Signor Beocoradi, one of the Italian delegates to the labor conference, that the paths of Italy and Germany would be identical in the future, as they had been in the past, says that observation may confidently be applied to the German foreign policy generally.

The appointment of General Von Caprivi to succeed Prince Bismarck, the paper says, has nothing of a threatening character. It calls attention to the fact that the duke of Wellington was at one time prime minister of Great attention to the fact that the duke of Wellington was at one time prime minister of Great Britain, and declares that German generals appreciate the blessings of peace no less than other Germans in responsible positions.

Jules Simon had a long talk today with Lmperor William. At the close of the interview the emperor presented M. Simon with a decoration of the order of Red Eagle, It is reported that in the course of the conversation the French statesman broached the subject of the neutralization of Alsace-Lorraine, and the emperor replied that it was never too early to discuss a question that cancerned the friendly relations existing between Germany and France. lations existing between Germany and France.

In the first rescript, the emperor says that acceding to the request made on the 18th instant, he grants Prince Bismarck permission to retire, hoping confidently that the fatherland will profit in the future, as it has profited in the past, by his counsel, energy and faithful devotion. The emperor says he had hoped that the necessity would not arise for Bismarck to think of separation during his lifetime. He regarded it as the most providential dispensation of his life that on several occasions he has held Prince Bismarck casions he has held Prince Bismarck by his side. What the prince has achieved for Prussia and Germany. and what the prince has been to him and the house of his predecessors, he will ever prehouse of his predecessors, he will ever preserve in greateful remembrance. Bismarck's wise and energetic policy of peace, by which the emperor is resolved to be guided in the future, being fully convinced of its correctness will always be remembered abroad, and deserves recognition. It is not in the emperor's power to reward Bismarck for his services, but as a sign of his lasting thanks, he confers upon him the dignity of duke of Sauenberg and presents him with a life-size oil painting of himself.

In the second rescript, the emperor thanks Bismarck as a military leader, for his invaluable services in the army during the time of William I. and to the present day, adding that he knows he will be alone with the army by retaining Bismarck in the highest rank by appointing him field marshal-general and colonel-general of cavalry.

retaining Bismarck in the highest rank by appointing him field marshal-general and colonel-general of cavalry.

In the first rescript the emperor addresses Bismarck as "My Dear Prince." and says with deep emotion:

I have seen from your entreaty of the 18th that you are determined to retire from the office you have occupied for so many years with such incomparable success. Obliged to familiarize myself with the thought of parting, I do it certainly with an afflicted heart, but with the firm hope that a compliance with your request will contribute to sparing and saving your life and powers, which the fatherland cannot replace, as long as possible. The motives you advance for your determination convince me that any further attempts to induce you to withdraw your request would have no chance of success. Therefore, Irespond to your wish."

The rescript concludes as follows:
God bless you, my dear prince, and grant you many years of untroubled old age, brightened by a consciousness of duty truly fulfilled. With these sentiments I remain now and also in the future, yours truly, obliged and grateful WILLIAM.

WHAT A CLASSMATE THINKS.

WHAT A CLASSMATE THINKS.

Meyer Freessinge, candidate for the reichstag in the first division of Berlin, in a speech to electors today, said that General Von Caprivi was a former schoolmate of his. The new chancellor, he said, was a free conservative, but would deal fairly with views opposed to his own, and would be willing to discuss matters in an attitude to which the opposition had hitherto been unaccustomed.

The National Fertung notes that the comtemplated military reforms in connection with the one year volunteer service, the procedure of militaty courts and the reduction of the infantry service, were all proposed by the radi-antry service, were all proposed by the radicals at the last session of the reichstag.

Prince Bismarck's acceptation of the dukedom, the offer of which from Emperor William I. he repeatedly declined, has caused a Supprison

It is learned that Delahayne tendered his resignation as a delegate to the labor conference, because of a difference with Jules Simon. The dispute between the two French representatives has now been settled and Delahayne has withdrawn his resignation.

THEY DECLINED THE DUKEDOM.

London, March 20.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says: Bismarck will probably decline the dukedom, although the delay in delivering the rescripts arose from the fact that there was forty-eight hours of negotiating in regard to distinctions to be conferred. It is stated that the emperor also wanted to grant an honorary donation to the retiring minister. I hear that General Von Caprivi's premiership is temporary, the intention being to combine this oftice with the foreign secretaryship. Count Herbert Bismarck will probably be appointed ambassador to St. Petersburg or Canstantinople. Caprivi was at one time expected to succeed Count Von Moltke.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: Besides comprising military and naval knowledge, Caprivi is well versed in modern languages, history and political science. While chief of the admiralty he showed great aversion to semi official papess. This leads the liberals to believe that a thorough change of relations between the government and press may be expected. All German ambassadors have been summoned to Berlin to make the acquaintance of and consult with the new chancellor.

A Times Berlin dispatch says: "A remarkabte feature of the crisis is that there has been no organized effort of public opinion to induce Bismarck to stay in office. This may be at the summoned to Berlin to make the acquaintance of each district. He appoints the enumerators, subdivides the districts, and is responsible for their zeal and accuracy. No abte feature of the crisis is that there has been no organized effort of public opinion to induce Bismarck to stay in office. This may be attributed to the fact that his countrymen were convinced of the hopelessness of trying to induce him to change his mind. Moreover, they felt that he merited the rest, and they know that they were blessed with an emperor who is pledged to continue the foreign policy which has secured peace to Germany for twenty years.

A GLOOMY VIEW. A GLOOMY VIEW.

St. Petersburg, March 29.—The Novosti today publishes another article on the retirement of Prince Bismarck from the German chancellorship. The paper takes a pessimistic view of the situation which will result from the chancellor's resignation, and declares that the solitary support of the edifice of European peace has crumbled.

THINKS THERE'S TROUBLE AHEAD. A Correspondent Predicts War Between Germany and France.

DETROIT, Michigan, March 20.—The Journal has the following special: LONDON, March 20 .- Is the peace of Europe to be involved by the resignation of Bismarck This is now an absorbing question. Those versed in European affairs have foreseen as inevitable this step, but its effect is a different matter. The iron chancellor held the will of the grandfather of Emperor William in the hollow of his hand. With him Bismarck's word was law. Whether under the hostile influence of his empress and her party, the invalid Emperor Frederick would have changed this, cannot be conjectured. But it was the gossip of Europe that the present young emperor, before his accession, had as his intimates a clique headed by Count Von Waldersee, known to be inimical to Bismarck, and which was regarded as a warlike party. In this feeling all of Europe nervously shares To this feeling it required repeated pacific ut-terances on the part of the young emperor, and the apparant continuance of Bismarck in his position. But the most significant thing was the elevation of Count Von Waldersee to a high position in the army and one close to the emperor. The continued pacific tone of the new ruler finally calmed Europe, at least to the belief that war was not immediately inevitable, but at the same time both Germany and France went on with the perfection of their armament and increase of their armies and while talking peace and quietness the young emperor showed his thoroughly warlike tendencies by his intense interest in his immense armies and personal participation in their measures. THE RUPTURE WAS UNAVOIDABLE.

But from time to time several things have leaked out which indicate that there would no doubt have been a rupture long before between Emperor William and Bismarck, but for two deterent conditions. First, the chancellor regarded himself and was regarded as the crea-tor of the empire. Second, the burden of the debt of gratitude of the Hohenzollern family to Bismarck rested heavy on the young emperor and he could not afford an issue with the chancellor too soon, as it might place him in an unpleasant position before his subjects.

In the meantime young William, filled with exalted ambitions. determined to occupy the position of the central figure in Germany. There has been much in his actions to make the surety that he would be a second Frederick the Great. that he would be a second Frederick the Great. Having this figure presented before his ambitious eye, he is filled with enthusiasm to work good as well as great things, and before him is unfolded a field of the richest, rarest and most abundant opportunities in the condition of oppressed labor. Whether this last move has met the bitterest opposition of Bismarck, and led to his resignation, cannot be told. Whether this action is clearly and purely out of his own erratic fancy or not, is difficult to say. Certain it is, no ruler ever took as bold a step with more apparent thoughtlessness. thoughtlessness.

WAITING FOR THE NEXT MOVE. It is no wonder that the iron chancello shook the dust of the court from his sandals, and, followed by his son, sulks with many dire predictions in his camp, while the rest royal Europe stands aghast at the sight of this rash young man playing with fire-brands, For in interference with labor can be seen nothing else than the encouragement of social disturbances involving the worst results. With socialism rampant, with anarchy, with nihilism in the very air he breathes, would be incarnation, in the position of everything antagonistic to such sentiments—stand to offer them his knee by which to mount to his throat? This is what the employing classes see in his dangerous movement. This is what Bismarck sees. As for the laboring classes, they will surely take advantage of his move, but it will be to the emperor's cost.

Meanwhile with Bismarck out, the peace of Europe is in the hands of this rash young ruler. With France and Germany, each like dogs, separated only by a frail barrier, regarding each other with sullen eyes—and while augmenting gradually their already enormous armics, and with them their burden of taxation until each army now represents quite nothing else than the encouragement of social armies, and with them their burden of taxa-tion until each army now represents quite three million men—while the financial burden is fast approaching the limit of ability of even those frugal people to bear up under. The question is, will these immense armaments be peacefully discontinued, or will war ensue as a solution? Which will succeed, and what will be the effect on the map of Europe?

A PREDICTION OF WAR.

To the first question, emphatically yes.

There will be war, and the question is who To the first question, emphatically yes. There will be war, and the question is who will win—France or Germany? The casual observer is liable to promptly say Germany. Be not too sure of this. What the French soldiers did in Europe under Napoleon the Great indicates what their rank and file were. There is nothing in their defeat in 1870 to cast one shadow upon their glorious courage. Be assured it was bad generalship and corruption that had to do with French defeat. High explosives, smokeless powder, magazine gans, military railways, electricity, all make war a different thing now.

It is safe to predict a future war—for war there will be. It will be short and unsanguinary. What kaleidescopic changes it will make on the map of Europe is beyond the ken of man. England is jealous of Austria; jealous of the power of Germany. England is worried at certain uneasiness in India, whose Sepoy people are held subject by bribery and a mere handful of troops, but who are being educated to the faith. There is in this situation only food for contemplation and conjecture. There are squalls ahead. There are clouds upon the horison whose shadow is now spreading over Europe like a sombre pall.

A Young Lady's Suicide.

JOLIET, Ills., March 20.—Miss Jessie White, the nineteen-year-old daughter of James S. White, an old resident, committed suicide last evening in a most sensational manner. She drove in a buggy up and down Chicago street several times, bowing and smiling to acquaintances. Finally, when nearly in front of the hotel she stopped the horse, drew a revolver from a box and shot herself through the heart. Several gentlemen rushed to the carriage just in time to catch her body as it was falling into the street. It is believed that the young lady was demented, as a result of a long series of persecutions at the hands of an anonymous and scurrilous letter-writer, who has been annoying her for three years, and who has remained undiscovered.

BLAIR DEFEATED.

SOME OF THE QUESTIONS WHICH HIS LONG SPEECH KILLED HIS THEY WILL BE ASKED.

UNDER THE PENALTY OF A FINE. AND IT IS DEAD BEYOND HOPE.

The Republican Vote Against It Larger Than Ever Before—Another Democrat Ex-pelled from the House.

WASHINGTON, March 20 .- [Special.]-This has been a sad day for poor old "Grandma" Blair.

The educational bill was buried beneath the cold, cold sod by his colleagues in the senate.

The vote stood 36 to 32 against the bill. However, when Blair saw his bill had been buried, he changed his vote from aye to no, in order to move a reconsideration. He will, perhaps make this motion tomorrow, but there is no chance for him now, for every member of the senate was either paired or voted. There was not a single name unaccounted for. Senator Conjuit voted for the bill while Senator Brown was paired in favor of it. Both Ten-nessee senators voted against the bill, as did the Arkansas and Texas men. The South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi senators were divided, Senators Hampton, Pugh and George voting for the bill. Senator Pasco, of Florida and the two Virginia senators also voted for it. The republican vote against the bill was larger than ever before.

THE DEBATE.
On motion of Senator Ingalls, the educaional bill was taken up at 1 o'clock as unfinished business.

Mr. Blair resented the motion as an inter-ference, without reference to himself or any consultation whatever, by one who was not in charge of unfinished business. He said that he "would take notice and govern himself ac cordingly." SENATOR BATE SPEAKS. Mr. Bate alluded to some remarks of Mr. Blair (in his opening speech on the bill) that reflected on the state of Tennessee as a laggard in regard to her educational interests, and asserted that Tennessee was not a laggard; did not stand in rear, but occupied a place in the front rank abreast, not only of the times, but of her sisters in the union. He said that he had listened patiently and politely to speeches for five or six days, but that he had then grown weary and sought refuge in the house of representatives, and that it was then that the re-His colleague (Mr. Harris) had also retired to the cloak room. That was in explanation of the remarks not being replied to at the time. the remarks not being replied to at the time. He went on to refute the statement made by Mr. Blair and to show the liberal provision which the state of Tennessee had made for common school education, and for colleges and universities.

In the course of his remarks, he spoke of the letter of School Superintendent Moses, of North Carolina (on which Mr. Blair had relied for his externer) as untrue and slanderys.

North Carolina (on which Mr. Blair had relied for his statement) as untrue and alanderous. Coming to speak of the bill itself, he opposed it because it would cause the people to rely on the federal treasury for the support and management of public schools. The head of the interior department would, he said, dispensantonial funds under hational laws, and having the keys of a hundred thousand school houses hanging at his girdle, that girdle would become as potent in politics as the sceptre of any crowned head. School patronage would be used in political campaigns of partisan demagogues. The tendency of the bill was dangerous. It fascinated and charmed but it destroyed. It wooed to destruction as but it destroyed. It wood to destruction as the siren of Capris. It would lead to despot-ism. It was a dagger behind a smile—a ser-pent coiled beneath the rose. BLAIR APOLOGIZES TO INGALLS.

Mr. Blair rose to close the debate. He apologized to Mr. Ingalls for the heated remark which he had made today when that senator submitted a motion which was unusual, but he now understood that that motion had not been made from an unfriendly feeling to him (Mr. Blair) or to the bill. He did not desire to avail himself of the agreement that he was to occupy an hour in closing debate, but was willing to submit the matter without further discussion. He desired that the question, which was one between the children of the country and the country itself, should be decided on its merits. He asked for a vote en the bill and the pending amendment. Mr. Hawley suggested that the senators had expected that the debate was not closed till 3 o'clock, and that, therefore, the vote should not be taken before that hour.

BLAIR READS AN ESSAY. Mr. Blair recognized the propriety of the suggestion, and set to work to fill up the time by reading an essay which he had prepared, on the general subject of the bill.

Having finished reading the paper (evidently a lecture delivered to a colored audience) some ten minutes before 3 o'clock, Mr. Blair occupied that ten minutes in extempore

Mr. Plumb offered an amendment to distribute the fund among the states in proportion to population between ten and twenty-one years of age. Rejected. THE BILL DEFRATED.

The senate then proceeded to vote on the third reading and engrossment of the bill.
When the vote was concluded and it was known that it had resulted against the bill,
Mr. Blair changed his vote from aye to no, so as to make a motion to reconsider.

The result was then amounced as yeas 31, nays 37, as follows:

Mr. Blair made a motion to reconsider the vote, which motion was entered; and then, on motion of Mr. Edmunds, the senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. Randall is steadily improving. His health is better at present than any time during his long illness. He has been free from any set-backs, and takes a lively interest in all congressional affairs, and is daily sought and consulted by his many friends and colleagues. His return to the capitol is earnestly wished to be as soon as the spring weather is settled. He seems confident that he will be able to resume his old seat before this session closes.

the house today. This is the fourth seat that has been stolen from the democrats this ses-sion. But Tom Reed and his highwaymen are not through yet. There are ten or twelve more seats they want, and they are going to get them. The man turned out today was Barnes Compton, of Maryland. He has served five years in the house, and had become one of the most distinguished members. However, there was a young republican named Mudd, who wanted his seat, although he had no shadow of title to it. To increase their majority the republicans simply informed Compton his name was Mudd, and it was so. There was no bolting from either party. Every man was on hand or paired, and the vote stood 159 to 145. Compton made a manly speech just before the vote was taken, in which he said that he knew the republican guillotine was ready. for him, but he would fall without a quiver, for he, and every one else, knew that he was justly entitled to his seat, it would go to the world that, although he was fairly elected, he was robbed of his seat.

Mr. W. J. Penniman, the special representative of the city of Brunswick, today extended, through Secretary Blaine, an invitation to the Pan-American congress to visit that city on the trip south. The invitation was ac-cepted, and W. E. Curtis, who is making up the itiniary of the journey, has decided that the Pan-American congress shall stop at Atlanta, Augusta, Macon, Columbus and Brunswick. MR. GRIMES'S WORK.

Mr. Grimes introduced a bill in the house oday, providing for a preliminary survey and estimate of the cost of making the Chattahoo-chee river navigable between West Point and Franklin, in Heard county. The bill was referred to the committee on rivers and harbors. Mr. Grimes will go before that committee in a few days, to explain the situation. He says the survey will cost only a very small amount, and he thinks it will be found that the stream

THE TREMBLING TORIES.

Lord Salisbury Addresses a Meeting i London.

London, March 20.—A meeting of conservative members of parliament, called by Lord Salisbury, was held at the Carlton club house today. Lord Salisbury made an address in which he said he regretted the slow progress of business in the house of commons. The government, he declared, was compelled to deal with obstructions of the most determined kind. He trusted that every supporter of the government, at whatever cost to his personal government, at whatever cost to his personal convenience, would give unremitting attention to his parliamentary duties. The tithes bill and land purchase bill were of paramount importance. The tithes bill must pass its second reading before the Easter recess. He believed that the proposals contained in the land purchase bill are such as to secure the unanimous support of the liberal unionists.

In regard to assisted education, on which subject there was much misrepresentation, Lord Salisbury begged members to reserve their opinion until the measure is introduced.

Lord Salisbury plegged members to reserve their opinion until the measure is introduced. Lord Salisbury idicules the report that parliament would soon be dissolved. He declared that the new Irish bill would secure the possession of landlords to their property.

Lord Salisbury also expressed the hope that the difficulty with the United States over the Behring sea question would be settled soon, but, he said, with such a susceptible a nation as America, Great Britain cannot negotiate at the top of her voice. This remark was greeted with loud laughter.

Burned Out Again.

Burned Out Again.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., March 20.—For over a year there has been a bitter war between the prohibition and anti-prohibition element in this city. The feeling was so bitter that two months ago the residence of Mayor Stockbridge, a prominent prohibitionist, was burned to the ground. The loss was $11,000, and it is rumored his political enemies had a hand in the matter. At a meeting of the republican and liberal parties last night, Mr. Stockbridge was nominated for mayor, and this morning at 5 o'clock his new residence was fired and burned to the ground. The loss is $8,000. The American hotel, adjoining, was damaged $3,000.

the Flames—The Losses and Insurance L—Other Casualties. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 20 .- A disastrous fire at 3 o'clock this morning destroyed two blocks of buildings in Lavilla, a suburb, and a boarding house in the city proper, causing a loss of nearly $125,000. The first alarm was sounded at 2:10 for a fire in the immense store and warehouse, comprising half a block, owned and occupied by Henry Lillienthal as a dry goods, grocery, wine and liquor store on Clay and Bridge streets. In an instant the entire block was in fiames. A rising wind faned the flames and in a few minutes the roofs of the surrounding buildings were in a blaze in a lozen places. At a quarter to 3 o'clock the flames leaped across Bridge street to a one-story wooden structure, owned and occupied by C. M. Conroy as a wine and liquor store. It was a mass of flames inside of three minutes, and in half an hour nothing was left of it. J. E. Bowden's new bathhouse was of brick, and stood on Bridge street, within two feet of Lillenthal's.

Bridge street, within two feet of Lillenthal's. The flames attacked the pine window casings of the north side at just 2:30 o'clock. A policeman burst in the front door and awakened the watchman sleeping within. He rushed down stairs in his shirt and drawers, and before he could finish dressing, the entire building was filled with smoke. An attempt was made to get a stream on the outside, but with little success. Five minutes later it was plain that the bathhouse was doomed.

At 3 o'clock the Coloseum was one mass of flames, so dense that its shape even could not be recognized. Next to the Conroy store on the south, was another brick building, also the property of Lillienthal. It was occupied by Marvin's meat market and Mazyck's cigar factory. It was a pile of brick and ashes at ten minutes past three.

THE FLAMES STREAD. At 3 o'clock the wind carried the flames across Adams street to the northeast corner of the intersection with Bridge street. A low wooden structure first burned; then a small house belonging to Porcher and Engle succumbed to structure first burned; then a small house belonging to Porcher and Engle succumbed to the flames almost before the occupants could get their furniture out. Next to this was a large wooden structure formerly known as "The Alpine," an apartment hotel or boardinghouse. This caught fire on the upper balcony. From house to house the fire kept leaping until every one on the other side of Adams, between Clay and Bridge streets, had been reduced to ashes.

By heroic efforts the firemen succeeded in checking the fire at 4:30 o'clock, so that the row of houses on the southside of Monroe street was saved. The department was handicapped by not having enough trained men for so large a fire, but the men, however, did noble work under the great disadvantages. They undoubtedly saved at least two additional blocks from destruction.

The scene at half-past four o'clock was a desolate one. Nothing was standing from the bath house, uertheasterly to the southeast corner of Clay and Bridge streets. For several blocks on all sides, Jurniture from a hundred desorted houses was piled in the streets or scattered about in yards, while the unfortunate owners stood around in all variety of undress, bewalling their misfortune.

At 4:30 o'clock, the Eligin house, corner of Julia and Ashley streets, was destroyed, the roof catching from the first fire. The house was bailly gutted. It was owned and occupied by E. H. Alger as a boarding house. It was three stories high and valued at about $4,000. Mr. Alger's insurance on the house and furniture is $3,500.

An Insolent Negro Who Disputed His Railroad Fare.

Montgomery, Ala., March 20.—[Special.] Information reached here late this afternoon of the shooting of Conductor Breck McCurdy, which occurred about 2 p. m., between Bay Minette and Mobile, on the Louisville and Nashville. The facts of the shooting are as follows: The negro got on the train at Bay Minette, and after it had proceeded a short distance Conductor McCurdy passed through and called upon him for his fare. The negro disputed the amount of the fare, which led to some words and ended by the negro drawing his pistol and firing at McCurdy. The ball struck him just below the right nipple, and passed entirely through the body. When Mr. McCurdy saw the negro attempt to draw his weapon, he put his hand in his pocket for his pistol, and as the negro fired he also fired, the shot striking the negro in the head. The train proceeded to Mobile, and the negro died before reaching that city. Mr. McCurdy was taken in charge by Dr. Rhett Goode, as soon as he reached Mobile, who gave his wounds proper attention. Dr. Goode pronounced his wound serious, but hopes for his recovery. Mr. McCurdy is one of the oldest and most popular conductors on the road.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]-Mr. B. F. McEachern, a son of ex-Alderman E. H. McEachern, died at the Columbus iceworks at o'clock this morning.

Mr. McEachern was a popular young man, twenty-four years of age, and was a clerk at the iceworks.

He occupied a room in the second story of the iceworks, in order that he might be on hand early every morning to superintend the starting of the work. He took his meals at his father's home, 1447 First avenue.

He is usually up very early, but this morning he did not make his appearance when the work began. His father, who is the superintendent of the factory, was there at the usual hour, and noticing his son's absence, and thinking he was oversleeping himself, sent up to the room to have him awakened. He sent a negro man who discovered that the young man was lying in bed, evidently suffering, and apparently in a dying condition. His father was no tified and was quickly at his son's bedside Physicians were summoned and Drs. Sims and Sims soon arrived.

A hasty examination showed that the young man had taken poison, and every effort to counteract its effect was made, but in fifteen minutes after the arrival of the physicians he breathed his last. A bottle bearing the drug label of Dr. W. F. Gann was found on a table near the bedside, and showed that he had taken morphine.

The blow to his father and mother was a terrible one. They perfectly idolized him, and in the constant business companionship of father and son, a feeling of kindness and consideration of one for the other and an exhibition of tenderness and love was noticeable at all times.

No reason why the young man should have taken his life is apparent. He was not involved in trouble of any kind, and the cause for the rash act is a mystery, unless it be at tributed to his health, which he complained was declining.

Undertaker Herring took charge of the body, and the funeral will take place from the resi dence of Mr. E. H. McEachern, 1447 First avenue, tomorrow morning.

Other of Memorial Day, at Barnesville, April 25th.

The Georgia Southern road has perfected arrangements by which it can ticket passengers from this city to any point in Europe, via the State Line of steamship. First-class passage from Macon to London, Liverpool, Glasgow, etc., can be bought for $112, or steerage $51. Letters of credit can be secured from A. Gibian & Co., of Macon.

Mr. E. L. Dennard, of Houston county, will sue the Georgia, Southern and Florida road for $5,000 for killing a very elegant mare. Mr. Dennard had refused $2,500 for the animal a short while before she was killed.

Mr. Tom Ansell, of the firm of L. McManus & Co., left this morning for a tour of Europe. He will be gone several months.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., March 20 .- [Special.]-Six miles north of the city, in the Meridian-ville neighborhood, Robert Mosely, a negro about twenty years old, attempted to outrage Miss Ellie Austin, a very highly respec young lady, vesterday, as she was on her way THE FIENDISH PLOT.

Mosely was a farm hand on the place of A. L. Blount, a brother-in-law of Miss Austin, with whom she lives. Half a mile from Blount's residence, near the edge of a lonely strip of wood, Mosely had dug a pit seven feet three deep and two wide, boxed it in with boards, and was near by in wait for her. THE ASSAULT AND STRUGGLE. When passing by he sprang upon her from behind and threw his arms around her. A fearful struggle followed, and she defeated his Then he pushed her in the pit and covered it with boards, which he nailed down. nd over the top laid sills and leaves and sticks to hide the place. A piece of old stovepipe was put through the top to let in the air. Mosely then said: "Now, d-n you, stay there, and I'll com

Fruit Displacing Cotton in the South west. ALBANY, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]great change is pending in the agricultural in-terests of southwest Georgia. An unusually large acreage has been planted in cotton this season. Already the farmers are having trouble with their hands. Upon many of the places the farmers have lost a number of their aborers. After making contracts for the year, allured by the prospects of large pay in the employ of corporations which are rapidly building up the south, they corporations, without warning throw down their hoes and ilently steal away to more remunerative fields of labor. This year there will be trouble in securing a sufficiency of help to tend and gather the crop. Another year it will be worse, and the acreage in the staple will be decreased.

FRUIT AND GRAIN TO THE FRONT. Fruit and grain culture will largely take the place of cotton planting. Other crops that re-quire less labor will absorb the attention of the dand owners. As in Ireland, where the emerald fields reclaimed from the plough are devoted to stock raising, so will the fertile soil of southwest Georgia gradually be utilized. If the land of Erin can be profitably devoted to this industry, much more so could the cheaper soil of this section be utilized. The labor is gradually being drawn from the cotton fields, other outputs must take its place.

ALBANY, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]-A li censed exhorter preaches every Sunday at the Redbone church in the farming settlement of that name in Lee county. Last Sunday, after service, he took dinner with one of his congregation. During the course of conversation, he was asked his opinion of trusts and monopolies.

"If they are organized for selfish motives, they are of the devil," was his reply.

He was next asked what he thought of the Alliance, and the same reply was given. It became reported in the neighborhood that the good exhorter had said that the alliance was from his satanic majesty, and now some of the farmers vow vengeance if he returns next Sunday to preach. It was reported that he had received an anonymous letter from Redbone warning him not to return. THE CONSTITUTION correspondent visited him, and he stated that he has received no such epistle, and that he expects to return and preach there next Sunday.

Addressing the Law Class.

Athens, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Hon. P. W. Meldrim, of Savannah, was in the city today. He is one of the special lecturers selected by the faculty of the law school to deliver lectures upon interesting and instructive branches of that science. Mr. Meldrim delivered one of the finest lectures ever heard in Athens this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the university chapel. His subject was criminal law, and he handled it in a masterful manner. A large number of citizens and members of the local bar were present to hear the lecture. All agree that it was one of great interest and instructive. During the collegiate year six of these lectures are delivered before the law class by different distinguished lawyers of the state. The other lecturers for the school are Judge William T. Newman, Judge A. P. Adams, Judge N. L. Hutchins and Major Joseph B. Cumming.

The Ex-Treasurer Issues an Appeal to the People, Asking for a Suspension of Opinion Until Further Investigation.

JACKSON, Miss., March 20 .- [Special.]-Ex-Treasurer Hemingway publishes a lengthy open letter to the people of Mississippi. He never misapplied a dollar. Reposing perfect confidence in his assistants, he does not think they took a cent. He supposed his report was correct until it failed to balance with his pooks. He then know that his books were money. He then knew that his books were He cannot point out the errors, but knows that they exist, and will endeavor to find them.

He was negligent in not having a balance struck and the money counted periodically. He had hoped that the committee's work would be thorough, which he thinks would have taken weeks and perhaps months, but their report shows that they have only verified his own findings as shown by his books He criticises the report. for its hurried work, and giving out information in advance of the report.

READY TO ANSWER.

He has not sought and will not seek to evade the consequences of his conduct, and is here to answer, in any and every way, the demand of the law. To relieve his sureties and not to conciliate public opinion, he has placed at the disposal of his bondsmen all he has, pending judicial investigation. He is ready to suffer any penalty justly due a faithless servant, but asks, in behalf of his family, and behalf of his family, and those interested, that no injury be done them by hastily formed opinion based on partial investigation.

AN INDICTMENT TO BE PREPARED. Hon. R. N. Miller, district attorney of this judicial district, arrived this evening, coming, it is understood, in response to a telegram of Governor Stone, with whom he has been in consultation tonight. He will not talk, but is in the state library tonight, and is evidently preparing to take steps criminally in the treas ury deficit matter. Hon. T. M. Miller, attorney-general of the state, will commence civil suit on the late treasurer's bond at once. THE MAGISTRATE IS PRESENT.

Jackson, Miss., March 20.-11 p. m.-[Special.]-R. W. Miller, disirict attorney, is at this hour in the state library, and having sent for W. H. Harris, a justice of the peace, who seems to be waiting for the district attorney to finish writing a document, there can be no doubt but that the purpose of the district attorney is to make affidavit against W. L. Hemingway, late treasurer, charging him with the embezzlement of $315,612.19 of the state's money. If the arrest is made tomorrow, which seems a certainty, the most probable course will b that Mr. Hemingway will waive examination and give bond to appear at the June term of the circuit court of Hinds county. Bond for any amount will be readily furnished. There has been no opinion expressed at any time that Mr. Hemingway would not remain here and answer whatever charge is brought against him.

TAKING STEPS FOR VINDICATION. JACKSON, Miss., March 20 .- [Special.]-Ex-Treasurer Hemingway has employed Messrs. Griffith and Waite, cashiers respectively of the Capital State and First National banks of this city, who will at once begin an investigation of his books from the day that he went in Mineral Lands Rising.

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Mineral lands are beginning to change hands. One gentleman has sold his place for $2,000, that was bought for $150. Another has sold his for the same amount, that he paid $300 for. Other lots have advanced in proportion. A good many strangers are in town, but they seem to be a very quiet set. Nothing can be learned more than above stated. Something will develop soon, and old Adairsville will come to the front with as rich mirrerals as any and in as great abundance.

Mr. Holden's Appointment CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga., March 20.—[Spe-ial.]—We are told that Mr. T. C. Holden, of his place, has been appointed deputy collec-per of the Athens district, by W. H. Johnson. Mr. Holden is a fine business young man, who will be remembered as assistant postmaster Augusta for several years. He will make a most efficient officer, and will give the people of his district perfect satisfaction.

The Alliance Men at Work GUYTON, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The Farmers' Alliance, of Effingham seems to be growing in membership and from the best information obtainable they have been discussing local and state politics. SMALL BALES OF COTTON

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL ALLIANCE.

President Polk Advocates a Change in the Way of Doing Up Cotton-Governor Gordon Speaks.

The National Alliance which convened Wednesday morning, concluded its deliberations yesterday afternoon, and adjourned.
On separating the delegates all expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the work which had been accomplished, and they also felt that the good effects of the work which was mapped out to be accomplished would be felt, [not only by the alliancemen, but by every farmer in the south.

One of the pleasant recollections which the delegates to the convention carried away with them, was there meeting with Governor Gordon. On Wednesday evening the governor, in response to an invitation which was tendered him, appeared before the convention and spoke for two hours on financial subjects. His words had a great effect, and the action taken yesterday by the convention, showed plainly the influence of his eloquence. Yesterday's Action

After the convention adjourned, the press committee gave out the following resolutions relating to the compound lard bill now before congress; Resolved, That the representatives of the corton states, here assembled, do assert that the com-pound lard bill now pending in congress is un wise, special, and class legislation, and will increase the burdens of one class of producers and only benefits a monopoly that by no means manufactures a pure article of hog's lard, and members of congress are hereby most respectfully and

L. L. Polk, president N. IF. A. and I. U.; S. M. L. Polk, president N.F. A. and I. U.; S. M. Adams, president Alabama alliance; W. S. Morgan, delegute, Arkansas; W. I. Vason, delegate, Fforida: L. F. Livingston, president Georgia Alliance; T. S. Adams, president, Lonisiana; G. B. Dimes, delegate, Missouri; S. B. Alexander, delegate, North Carolina; E. T. Stackhouse, president, South Carolina; S. D. A. Duncan, president, Texas; R. W. Coleman, delegate, Mississippi; J. P. Buchanan, president, Tennessee.

It was also resolved that the above resolution pertaining to national legislation on the compound lard bill shall be printed in the National Economist and be placed on the desk of each senator and representative.

The action taken in regard to the manufacture of cotton bagging resulted in the followsolved, That our president, L. L. Polk, be instructed to assure the brethren in the cotton states that the outlook for the manufacture and supply of cotton bagging is much better than for the past year and will probably be equal to The following official indorsement of J. F.

Tillman was also adopted:
Resolved, That the state presidents of each alliance or union be requested to assist in every pos-sible way, J. F. Tillman, the national crop stati-cian, in securing accurate crop reports. President Polk Talks.

Although the convention adjourned at on o'clock, President Polk and a few of the other delegates found it impossible to leave for their homes before today.

All those who remained over night in the city congregated at the Markham, and freely discussed what had been accomplished. President Polk was the life of the party.

"The results of this convention," he said when questioned, "will be good. An excel-lent effect will be produced not only for the alliance but throughout the south. We transacted some very important business and the delegates were perfectly harmonious. In fact I never saw more unity, and in that respect they perfectly represented the alliance sentiment of the entire country, for there never was a time when we were more thoroughly united than we are today."

"Will the Liverpool cotton exchange grant the reduction in the tare which the alliance

"It certainly will not. Until the Liverpool exchange is convinced that the southern farmer is in earnest, nothing can be done. It can't be accomplished by diplomacy or appeals, or anything of that sort, but we will succeed in the end."

"Did the convention take any action to force the Liverpool cotton exchange to ac-

this tare and bagging question will lead ultimately to the adoption of a bale of juniform weight. It will be a small but compact bale and therefore all the present waste will be avoided and the possibility of getting dirt into cotton will also be obviated. By putting it up in packages which one man can handle, everybody will be benefitted. It will also be much easier to store it in the holds of ships.

"We believe that in the end it will lead to the cotton being wrapped in wire, instead of the heavy, bungling tie now in use. I don't hesitate to say that but for the expense of changing the present compresses the system would go into effect this year. It will certainly be an immense saving to the farmer and also to the manufacturer by keeping the dirt out of the machinery and by making the farmer more particular in the classification and care of his cotton. There is no product with so much waste between the harvest and the consumer as cotton."

THE EXPOSITION. In speaking of the coming Piedmont exposi-tion President Polk said:

"I am glad to see that so much is being done to make the exposition a success. I understand that three days are to be devoted to a chrysanthimum show and I think that one of those days should be devoted to memorial exercises in honor of Henry W. Grady. People come from far and wide to take part, and considering Mr. Grady's love of flowers I think that nothing could be more appropriate."

THE CITY'S VEINS.

What Mr. Langford Has to Say About the Sewer Question.

Mr. John Langford is well up on the sewer question. He has superintended the construc-tion of many of the sewers, and knows all the underground connections. He said yesterday to a reporter:

"What I want to see is a full statement of what I want to see is a 1th statement of this sewer business, so that the people can understand it. I have never seen it presented in such a way that the people can understand what they are about. Enow I know more about these sewers than anybody except the city engineer, and I know more about their actual construction than he does, for I have superintended the mechanical construction of many of them. Take that fourth ward sewer, for instance. That sewer-which is a rain water sewer-empties into the Butler street branch. About eighteen inches beneath it is the sanitary sewer. There is a hole made in the rain sewer through to the sanitary sewage drops through into this sanitary sewage drops through into this sanitary sewage drops. This works all right, until the rain sewer becomes a little bit flooded, and then this sanitary sewer fails to carry off its part of the sewage and all this filth pours right down the rain sewer into the branch. This sanitary sewage gets into the rain sewers whenever there is a heavy rain, and when the whenever there is a neavy rain, and when the waters burst up through the man holes it scatters this filth all around over the street, and makes the neighborhood decidedly uppleasant. Now, on my lotabove the big sewer which runs through it, has burst five times this year, and my premises have been made almost unendurable by the refuse poured out on them, and I have had to have dirt to cover it up with. What we want is light."

TAX RECEIVERS COMPLAIN.

They Think They Should Have Extra Pay

They Think They Should Have Extra Pay for Extra Work Done.

Comptroller General Wright has for several days been receiving letters from tax receivers in all parts of the state protesting against the act of the legislature which requires them to obtain agricultural and mineral statistics.

Comptroller Wright is entirely in sympathy with the tax receivers, but no choice is given him, and he is obliged to enforce the law. The trouble grew out of the fact that it was represented that the state otood in great need of agricultural and mineral statistics. They were at loss to know how to obtain the information until a bill vas introduced imposing the work on the tax receivers and making no provisions for their payment.

Some of the tax receivers have flatly refused to attend to the additional duties, which would more than double their work, and others have written to know what would be the result of disregarding the order. Comptroller Wright in reply has advised all those who are disaffected that they must either compile the statisticts or resign. He advises them, however, to continue with the work, and assures them that an effort will be made to secure adequate payment for them from the next legislature.

TENNESSEE COAL AND IRON. A Move on Foot to Displace Statesman

Platt. From the New York Times.

Wall street had another exemplification yesterday of the difficulties in the way of being a statesman and a financier both at once. Mr. Thomas C. Platt's Tennessee coal and iron stock made this exhibition, not a new exhibition it is true, but still an exhibition which is credited with making some folks up in the latitude of Albany feel that, after all, life is only a great big green gooseberry. About a month ago Statesman Platt's Tennessee Coal and Iron stock was buoyant and booming up around $83 a share; yesterday it sold at $43.50—less than flaff the price at which the statesman's tip was being gulped down by trustful friends. The opening price yesterday was $47.50. The slump of four points was made within the space of a very few minutes. Later it recovered about half of the drop, but it seemed to be standing on very shaky legs when the stock exchange closed.

Some efforts have been made to convince a cynical world that Mr. Platt's political followers got out of their stock at very much higher prices. A good many politicians have been inclined to claim a sagacity equal to that which induced Lou Payn to float out of his "interest" with a forty-thousand-dollar profit, (more or less;) but the truth to be reported is that Mr. Payn, in the enjoyment of his horse sense, is rather lonesoure. When he was selling, most of the rest of the receivers of the Platt tip were bnying. Some of them had a paper profit, that only prompted them to buy more. The stock was going to 150—this they had "stright from the inside." Somehow or other, however, it didn't. And one result has been that Platt politicians have not only lost heavily by too much confidence in Thomas' stip, but some of them (not merely one or two of them, either,) have "gone broke."

It is known that one prominent Stock Exchange brokerage firm was obliged to notify Statesman Platt three or four days ago that it would mean that the political speculative contingent must be "wiped out." This signifies net merely that paper profits have disap From the New York Times.
Wall street had another exemplification yester-

the state of New York who would agree that Wall street is a very wicked and, likewise, a very uncer tain place.

Upon the top of this speculative unhappiness Statesman Thomas C. Plattis confronted with the probability that he will soon be asked to step down and out of the presidency of the company. One of the "points" upon which the Platt crowd were able originally to boom Tennessee coal and iron sky high consisted of the hysterical parading of a lot of charges and inuendoes against the former president of the company, John H. Inman. They went so far as to get a lawshit entered upon the calendar of the United States circuit court. Scandalous stories and insinuations impeaching the integrity of Mr. Inman were peddled all over Wall street. Then the stock was up around 85 and 90. One day a little while ago, however, Wall street heard something drop; instead of 90 the Tennessee Coal quotation was 50. Then the people who had been loudest-mouthed in their onslaughts upon ex-President Inman suddenly changed their time and were anxiously pleading for favors from the man whom they had savagely attacked. The suit they had begun they stopped; and a few days ago the Tennessee Coal and Iron company's board of directors, ratifying the action of a committee, entered upon its minutes a record declaring that, after having made a "thorough investigation of the transactions involed and having satisfied themselves that information which was assumed and relied upon was accurate," they found that "there is no inability by reason of the matter stated in in the complaint" against Mr. Inman. And fearful that Mr. Inman would put into execution a suggestion he had made of bringing suit against the company for damages, the board of directors entered this further explicit statement on its minutes:

"This is in full withdrawal of any claim on the execution the complaint and the complaint against measured the company for damages, the board of directors entered this further explicit statement on its minutes:

the company for damages, the board of directors entered this further explicit statement on its minutes:

"This is in full withdrawal of any claim on the part of the complaintants by reason of the matters in the bill of complaint alleged," the understanding being that no future suit shall be brought, but that the arrangement herein made terminates and settles all questions and is final."

Under the charter held by the Tennessee Coal and Iron company, it is said that the stockholders of the corporation can at any time meet and by a majority vote, change its management. In view of this fact, a movement is on foot in Wall street, supported by prominent southerners in the company, to call an early meeting of the stockholders and forthwith oust Thomas C. Platt and certain of his colleagues from power. When Platt and company took possession of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company they humorously voted that they wouldn't hold any "annual meeting" for two years. It was probably sheer generosity that kept them from abolishing annual meetings attogether. But their charter and their stockholders seem to be a little less liberal. Apparently all the Tennesse Coal and Iron company is not over yet.

wise and long-headed capitalists are coming not only from all over Georgia to invest in Atlanta real estate, but from other states. Thousands of dollars are pouring lnto our beautiful city every year because it pays so handsomely to buy dirt here. Then why not do this yourself? Each succeeding year shows a decided advancement in real estate values. There are absolutely no better lots in the city than these we offer at auction March 25, at 2 o'clock p. m., on North avenue, Spring, Cox and Williams streets. PASS THROUGH ATLANTA LAST

On Their Way to Tallapoosa—One Hur and Ten of Them Representing About Twenty-Five Million Dollars.

One hundred and ten New Englanders, representing $25,000,000, passed through Atlanta last night on their way to Tallapoosa.

The trip is made under the auspices of the Tallapoosa Land, Mining and Manufacturing company, and is destined, no doubt, to mark a new era in the prosperity of that already pros perous little city, Tallapoosa.

The tourists are traveling in a train of five elegant Pullman vestibule and dining cars, with everything furnished in palatial style, all in charge of President E. P. Carpenter, of the Tallapoosa Furnace company.

Mr. Carpenter said of his party last night:

'It's the largest and most substantial body of capitalists that ever went out of New England, paying their own expenses. It isn't a picnic, this trip—it's business all through. They have heard a great deal about Tallapoosa, and were willing to pay their own ex penses here to see and examine for themselves. They look to the advantages of the place with a view of investing, and the trip means a great deal for the city and for the state.'

Their train came in last evening at 9:40, and left for Tallapoosa at 10:45.

A number of gentlemen, including representatives from several Georgia and Alabama towns, were on hand to meet them.

A number of prominent Atlanta citizens leave at 1:13 this afternoon to join the New Englanders at Tallapoosa.

Douglasville is one of the livest towns in Georgia, and she will have a fine delegation of the livest young men in Georgia to meet the 2:30 p. m. train there today. Merit and pluck always win, and Douglasville is always right along with the head of the procession.

WILL OPPOSE AN ELECTION.

The Majority Sentiment Against Agitating The 1890s will meet tonight and decide upon he prohibition campaign.

The meeting will be interesting and lively. Nearly every prominent member of the 1887 club has expressed a determination to attend, and many of them will oppose an election, and oppose it strongly.

It was openly stated yesterday that—

Judge Hillyer would attend and oppose the ampaign.

Major M. C. Kiser will say that Atlanta is loing well enough.

Judge James A. Anderson will advocate no Mayor Glenn is violently opposed to the agitation of the prohibition question, and openly declares himself against the campaign, In the Kimball, yesterday afternoon, he was

"The fight just now will cost Atlanta, I firmly believe, ten thousand people and millions of money." "Do you think they will make the fight?"

ne one asked. "I hope not. I don't think they can get enough to do it. Those who went in before with money and work, at least a great many many of them, are opposed to it. The liquor traffic today is under perfect control—better traffic today is under perfect control—better than it was during prohibition."

"So it is," remarked one of the party.
"The barroom men do not make any attempt to control the town now. They don't violate the law, either. When ten o'clock comes they close up and after that you can't get a drink. Then, too, there is no Sunday liquor selling here. I don't think we can afford to agitate the matter. Liquor is under control thoroughly and Atlanta is booming along. Then let's leave it all alone."

WHY BRUNSWICK IS GLAD. She Will Be Confirmed as the Chief Port of the South.

Brunswick, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—
Brunswick is to be visited by the Pan-American congress. This was definitely announced in a telegram received by Mr. A. I. Branham today, from Colonel C. P. Goodyear, who is in Washington. Secretary Blaine favors the visit, and it will undoubtedly be made. The special committee sent to Washington to urge an appropriation for deepening the outer bar at this place to twenty-six feet, is meeting with much success. The committee on rivers and harbors place to twenty-six feet, is meeting with much success. The committee on rivers and harbors has agreed to report favorably the joint resolution authorizing a survey for that purpose. This means much for Brunswick, which will be the chief south Atlantic port, if this increase in depth is made, as she will have descent react then any other port. deeper water than any other port.

New Parks in Griffin. GRIFFIN, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]-In the GRIFFIN, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—In the special of last night mention was made of the grading in front of the Nelms house. It was thought by many that the dirt had been broken for the new depot, which had been promised Griffin, but THE CONSTITUTION in stated that a park was their object in doing the grading. This morning Roadmaster Marvin informed a gentleman that the road would lay off a park on the south side of the road also, if the citizens would sign a petition to the authorities requsting the removal of the marble yard of Jones & Co. In a short time a petition was largely signed and placed in the hands of the officials for action.

Georgia Blossoms in Florida.

Georgia Blossoms in Florida.

Brunswick, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—
This morning at 12 o'clock, Hon. John Z.
Spears, mayor of Brunswick, was married to Miss Docia Wilson, Rev. E. Z. F. Golden officiating. After the ceremony, Mayor and Mrs. Spear left for a bridal tour in Florida.
They will visit St. Augustine and other points.
Mr. Walter Book and Miss Ella Gaddis, daughter of Colonel A. A. Gaddis, superintendent of the Brunswick company, were also married by Mr. Golden. They left on the same train with Mayor Spears, for Jacksonville.

Homer Burton Growing Worse BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Homer Burton, the man who was shot by Ada Miller, Wednesday morning, is growing worse. He may die before morning. Bond has been fixed for the woman at $1,000. At 11 o'clock tonight the bond had not been made. Burton is a brother-in-law of Congressman Charles F. Crisp, and is of one of the best families in Georgia.

Held to Answer the Charge. Augusta, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—John A. Wagner, who attempted to murder Chief Twiggs, of the police force, yesterday, was arraigned for trial before Recorder Pierce this morning. The evidence of the case was briefly told, and the court required the young man to give a $1,000 bond for his appearance before the superior court to answer the charge of assault with intent to murder.

An Injunction Suit Ahead,

An Injunction Suit Ahead,
ATHENS, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The injunction case of E. W. Speer et al. vs. the city of Athens will be tried in the supreme court Monday. City Attorney Andrew J.
Cobb, and Messrs. A. M. Speer and T. W.
Rucker will go up to Atlanta to argue the case. Its decision settles the question whether or not Athens is to have paved sidewalks. The Horse Ran Away.

Augusta, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Mr. Lewis F. Goodrich, architect, while returning from the orphan asylam, was riding in a light spring wagon, when the horse became frightened and started to run. Mr. Goodrich jumped out. He sustained a compound fracture of the leg, and was badly contused. Arranging for the State Meeting.

Augusta, Ga.. March 20.—[Special.]—At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Young Mens' Christian association tonight, committees were appointed to arrange for the state convention of the Young Mens' Christian association of Georgia, in Augusta next month. Griffin Illuminated.

Woe in Wall Street.

In New York the big bucket shops have about succeeded in gobbling up the little ones, employing the courts as a sort of digestive apparatus. This gobbling up process is the result of a desire on the part of the big bucket shops, called "exchanges," to enjoy a monopoly of the bucket shop business, but thus far the results are not such as might have been expected. There is still trouble in Wall street, and a wail goes up from that region to the effect that business is dull. The public seems suddenly to have become too virtuous to speculate, or else it is engaged in nursing some of the various wounds it has received at the hands of the honest men who make their headquarters in Wall street.

The amiable and accomplished brokers, in the absence of outside victims, have been trying to make a living off of each other, and they have had a remarkably tough time. There are no commissions to gladden their hearts, and there is nothing left for them to do but to complain that there is a general dullness in "business." Business, it will be observed, is one of those elastic words that can be used to cover a multitude of trans

If the general public has learned enough of Wall street speculations to understand that it has no sort of chance when it comes to putting its money against the experience of the gamblers, the lesson will be worth good deal to the country at large. When speculation is rife in Wall street the whole people suffer either directly or indirectly. Legitimate business is at a standstill for the reason that capital which would otherwise be employed in investments is attracted to Wall street, and is there gobbled up sooner or later by the honest gamblers who hold high carnival there.

Worse than that, when the big bucket shops are in full and profitable blast the farmers of the country suffer. Mr. Pillsbury, the largest miller in the country, says that the fictitious sale of grain discounts the price as effectually as the production of a surplus crop would do. If the sale of grain futures has this result the effect of the sale of fictitious cotton bales must be to reduce the price of cotton. When the farmers of the south and west begin to appreciate this fact they will cause the speculators to carry on their business in shady places in company with the bunko men and the faro-

Growing Georgia Towns.

If anyone will read the Americus papers carefully-or even glance at them, for that matter, and then peruse a copy of the Albany News and Advertiser, and then scan the bristling columns of the weekly press of that highly favored section, they will be convinced that the people are moving down that way. Small towns that were never heard of before outside of their local boun-Caries, are looming up and taking exalted rank in the industrial procession. Banks and factorfes, steam railroads and street railroads, and enterprises of all sorts are flourishing in towns that were sleepy villages only a few years back. And so it goes. One after another they are coming to the front, prospering themselves, and making the state prosperous.

The saying goes that you "can't keep a good town down." But the record showsthat towns that were thought to be worthless in that section, have risen to the top of late, and are holding their own with the

May their growth and enterprise continue. THE CONSTITUTION congratulates them; the whole state rejoices and welcomes them to a place in the industrial family.

Our Southern Pine.

Garden and Forest, which is an ideal weekly of its class, sounds a warning note in regard to the destruction of the pine forests of the south. A few years ago the white pine supply in the north was considered inexhaustible, but the increased demand, following the increased consumption, has demonstrated that within a comparatively short time the immense forests on which the north has depended will be entirely denuded. And yet, at the north, where the population is denser and more thoroughly organized, so to speak, there has been some definite attempt made to preserve the forests and to touch the pine trees with the hand of economy. In spite of this, the white pine forests are disappearing, and, as Garden and Forest says, it is only a matter of a few years when they will be entirely exhausted.

Very little pressure, however, has thus been brought to bear on those who are making way with the hard pine forests of the south. The arguments of the various forestry congresses that have been held appeal to the common sense of the public, but they have not as yet penetrated into the regions where the damage is done. Just at present appearances would indicate that the hard pine forests are more extensive than the white pine forests that formerly existed at the south. and there is no doubt that the timber-cutters have several years of hard work yet before

Nevertheless, the timber-cutters have a number of coadjutors that have never made their appearance in the white pine region. First and foremost among these are to be reckoned the turpentine manufacturers, whose depredations are confined to the young trees, and who destroy each year a vas amount of promising timber with very little profit to themselves. Those who have never seen the result of the depredations of the turpentine men can have very little conception of their extent.

In addition to this destruction of the pine forests must be reckoned the increased demand for hard pine lumber in all parts of the world. The home consumption is doubling every few years. The saw mills are kept running to their full limit, and new ones are projected in all parts of the pine belt. The exports of hard pine lumber from the United States last year exceeded those of the year previous by about forty per cent, while, according to Garden and Forest, Great Britain took an excess of more than fifty per cent over her importations of the previous year.

Garden and Forest, however, makes a mis-take when it says that the pine forests will not reproduce themselves. Nature seems to have provided for the turpentine men in this respect. If there were no young trees coming on the turpentine men would find but a small field in which to display their talents. The economy of nature seems to have provided for this, but nature, unfortunately, is not supplemented by man. Where the pines are destroyed, a growth of oaks, persimmon etc., takes their place. Then, when this new growth disappears, it is succeeded by a new and vigorous crop of pines.

Nevertheless, the time has arrived when the south should begin to economize her pine possessions. The matter is a serious one and should be seriously considered. The world cannot easily find a substitute for our hard pine, and for that reason we cannot afford to have this unequaled building timber disappear. This is a question that should be taken in hand by our foresty associations.

Bismarck and the Socialists. The resignation of Bismarck is the neces sary result of the Emperor William's socialstic programme. The emperor fears the socialists more than he hates them, and therefore adopts their theories in order to gain their confidence be ore he destroys them. Bismarck, on the other hand, was always frank and disdainfully open in dealing with his inferiors and enemies. To a socialist leader he said: "If your party has its way, life will not be worth living; if ours is vicorious, there will have to be executions, out they shall be conducted with politeness up to the last step of the scaffold."

This grim remark was thoroughly Bisnarckian. The man who could utter such words is not equal to the task of conciliating he socialists, while pretending to carry out their designs. Bismarck preferred to resign and be honest, rather than remain next to the throne in the role of a cheat.

Phosphate in Georgia.

The discovery of phosphate in Florida has attracted thousands to that state, and has done more toward bringing capital into it than all its other interests combined. Many of the South Carolina phosphate men have abandoned the dredgidg of the well-worked river beds there and have invested their wealth in Florida.

Not to be behindhand in the phosphate or any other business, Georgia has fallen into line and will probably unearth a boom in bones before many months have rolled away. The editor of the Brunswick Times has al ready informed us of valuable phosphate deposits in his cellar, and there are other evilences that many of the animals that were drowned in the flood lie buried in the marshes of Brunswick.

And this is not all. The purchasers of the Okefeenokee swamp are almost convinced that they will find valuable phosphate material in its gloomy fastnesses, and they are going to dig for it in all confidence. If they are successful they will make millions, not only for themselves, but the whole state will be greatly benefitted. What a boom there will be in Georgia in she strikes phosphate! Added to her coal and iron interests it will make her the envied and admired of all the states in the union, as well as the richest. "Let the good work

Labor in Europe.

The international labor conference called by the Emperor William may discuss the rates of wages, the length of a working day, and the cost of living until the crack of doom without any beneficial results.

Platforms and resolutions and tons of good advice will do European labor no good until the oppressive and expensive systems of government in the old world give place to republics, run in the interests of the people With immense standing armies, expensive navies, magnificent courts and royal families to be provided for, to say nothing of a useless gang of dukes and lords and marquises, the people are bound to suffer, or, in other words, labor will not have a fighting chance.

The ruling classes in the European monarchies have no sympathy with labor. They never concede anything to the working masses until they are frightened into making a show of justice. It is almost as bad in republican France, because the unfavorable surroundings of that country make it necessary to support a costly military establishment. It is quite likely that some of the leaders in the labor conference will recognize the difficulties of the situation, and urged on by despair will sound the rallying cry of socialism or anarchy. This council of wageworkers is simply a weak device of the ene mies of labor to amuse and interest the masses. If it subordinates everything to the interests of peace it will benfit nobody, but if it turns itself loose the outcome may be as disastrous to kings and nobles as the work of a popular convention called about a century ago by an unfortunate French

In these days it is dangerous for the opressors of labor to call laborers together to discuss their grievances.

Black Anarchists.

Anarchy knows no color line. This was made manifest in Chicago when the mulatto wife of Albert Parsons made herself a leader in the red flag gang.

In New York a few misguided negroes are preparing to get themselves into trouble. At a recent meeting of a republican club, in which there were several negro members, a black man named Thomas Garrett made a speech in which he denounced New York as worse than the south in its treatment of colored men. He said that he could not get a meal in a decent restaurant in the metropolis on account of his color. Then Garrett commenced talking anarchy. He said that before building up society in this country it would be necessary to destroy, and dynamite would have to be used. The colored mem bers of the club sided with Garrett, and for a time there was quite a hubbub. It is all right. When the sheriff begins the good work of hanging anarchists he will give Garrett a taste of genuine equality.

A New York society belle, who wants to ride like a man, says: "And why not a divided garment for clothing woman's legs as well as a man's. Were these useful members not given woman for the same purpose that they were given to man? Nothing in their anatomical construction would freedom and grace of movement are so sacrificed; Besides, riding sideways cramps the back and stops circulation in the right leg. Then, too, there is the difficulty of getting a skirt to stay comfortably in place and they are now so closely fitted and strapped down that there is considerable danger in case of an accident. A very one-sided development is the consequence, besides the many discomforts to the horse. It is more difficult for the horse to travel squarely with an even gait; saddle galls are almost sure to form Saddles also have to be strapped so tight in orde not to slip as to be a source of continued discom-fort to the poor, uncomplaining brute."

Your correspondents—as you say—"obtained the views of about fifteen hundred men." My friends learned the choice of about fifteen thousand, among whom are two judges of the "supreme court," more than half of the "superior court', judges, and except one or two of the city-counties, all of the county officers in the state.

Since the publication of your article, to establish the correctness of mine, I requested the parties who provided the facts contained in my first, to go over the work as far as possible, asking only the choice between "Evans" and "Northen." Replies from over half of the state are in, giving "Evans" as the choice of seventy-one counties and "Northen" of two. In "Baldwin" county, where your correspondent did not finid one vote for "Evans," I find as between "Evans" and "Northen," the county is overwhelmingly du Bignon's. Of course everybody who has read the for-eign dispatches is talking about the resignation of Bismarck and the possible effect upon Germany and the rest of the world. And, of ourse, too, everybody is as much at sea as the newspapers themselves.

"The newspapers make one big mistake in speaking of the emperor," said one of Atlanta's most prominent German-Americans. "They seem to think he is little more than American ward politician. There a vast difference. William is emperor of Germany. He has no need of political capital, he has no need of notoriety. Whatever he does is done, you may depend apon it, solely with a view to furthering the interests of his people. It is so in his movement in behalf of the laborers. He saw that the people of the mines are not treated as they should be treated, and he says "there must be something wrong here." Then he takes what he believes to be the proper steps to bring about a betterment of their condition. We may not all agree with him, but we must give him credit of being sincere. We must not forget that he is emperor which, believe me, is something more than ward politician. And he is not 'playing,' as they say, for notoriety."

Of the causes which led to Bismarck's resignation, this citizen said: "I don't pretend to know any more about it than you. Reading the newspaper eports you find a variety of reasons given, and with the reader it is a sort of pay-your money-and-take-your-choice situation. Doubtless a good many reasons could be given, but if I were asked to choose I would say it is simply because one is an old man, the other is a young man. The immediate cause may have been the Guelph fund controversy, it may have been the abolishing of the presidency of have been the Prussian ministry, or it may something entirely foreign to both of these controversies; but the reason back of it all is the difference in age of the two principal figures, and the difference of ideas which comes with the difference of age."

The possible effect upon Germany and upon Europe is the feature most talked about. It is safe to say that even the closest students of contemporary European history did not expect to have the stir-up in European affairs come from that source. The resignation of Prince Bismarck, the laying-down of the sway which he has held since 1863, was about the last thing that was looked for.

"Yet I do not think any evil results need be continued the above-quoted citizen. "When I read the first announcement to my family at the breakfast table, we could talk of nothing else for half an hour. Then we settled down, and everything moved along just as usual. I suppose it was the same way with thousands of families throughout rmany and Europe. Every German has an abiding faith in the stability of the government which even the resignation of Bismarck ca

"What of Count Von Caprivi?" "Of the new minister I can tell you but little, but the fact that he has been selected is a sufficient waranty for his worth. He is a general in the army. This means, doubtless, that he went into the army when a youth; that he proved himself efficient as a lieutenant, then as a cap-tain, then major, colonel and general. The emperor has chosen him from among all his fellows to be chancellor, and the emperor doubtless knows his worth. So you see need be no great commotion about the

But there is a decided commotion, and there are many who do not agree with this optimistic view of the situation. Americans generally haven't the greatest faith in the young emperor, but it is possible that they are taken in the man. A young man of thirty, with all the power that is his, may succeed making a decided stir in the world.

Hon. R. H. Lewis is being prominently spoken of as his own successor in the house of representatives from Hancock county. The impression up this way is that if he runs his election is assured, and that impression is the result of the record Mr. Lewis made during his stay in Atlanta. Hancock county never had a more faithful or active representative, and no man ever came to the house from any county who had more friends than did Bob Lewis who had more friends than did Bob Lewis. Every member of the house was his friend, and this is something that not every man who has been in the legislature can say. A man's personal popularity has a great deal to do with his success as a legislator, and that is the reason why the local bills of Hancock county always had such an easy time. It is sincerely to be hoped that Mr. Lewis will again allow the use

He Does Not Think He Is Responsible for the Mistake—Mayor Glenn Writes a Pair of Vetoes—The Aldermen Meet.

Hon. J. H. Goldsmith, city comptroller, has a word to say about the mistake by which At-danta is lending money to the Lowry Banking ompany at three per cent.

Mr. Goldsmith disclaims the responsibility.

"In an interview with the Hon. Jacob Haas his morning," he said, "you have done me great injustice by the assertions which appear." "In what way?" he was asked.

"In reference to Atlanta lending money at three per cent to the Lowry Banking company, the money having been obtained by the city from a sale of bonds which were issued January 1st, 1890." 'Wasn't the statement correct?"

"Not as presented. These are about the real facts: Hen. Hugh T. Inman, chairman of the finance committee, consulted with me to retire a like amount of bonds which, fro the annual report of the city treasurer, printed. in the annual reports of officers for 1888, fell due January 1st, 1890. We both, together, examined this annual report, and found that $125,000 of bonds were reported as failing due at that time, and Mr. Inman requested me to draw the ordinance for presentation to, and adoption by, the city council, to authorize the issuing of that amount of bonds, which I did in accordance with the treasurer's report.

"You drew the ordinance -"I drew the ordinance. at the request of the chairman of the finance committee, according to the best lights before us as to the maturity of the old bonds, based on information derived outside of the city comptroller's office, as, at that time, there were no books in that office containing the information, the city comp-troller's office having been established last July.' "Then, you think it was not your fault?"

"It is not my duty to draw ordinances to sue bonds, and it was only done in stance out of courtesy to the chairman of the finance committee who requested it. it is not by my mistake that the city has lest, and I cannot see how I am to be held responsible for an error I did not commit.'

Vetoing Liquor Licenses. Mayor Glenn has written another veto.

By it two liquor licenses are stopped. One of the licenses killed by the veto is the property of A. Daus, at 46 Decatar street. At that place G. Hentschell has a whisky house, and Daus bought him out. In the transfer papers as they came before the council Daus neglected to sign the bond of a $1,000 as required by the law, and for that reason the license was vetoed. The other license was a similar transfer from G. W. Robinson to John H. Holland, at 154 Decatur street. In the body of the license D. H. Dougherty appears as one of the sureties while the bond is signed by D. H. Dougherty & Co.

"The affidavit" says the veto "required to be made by all applicants for licenses that they have never been convicted of a violation of the state laws or city ordinances regulating the liquor traffic was not made by John H. Holland. I doubt the policy of allowing liquor licenses to be transferred, but if it is allowed the law should be strictly complied with and all the safeguards provided by the ordinances should be preserved.

It is astonishing how many southern women there are in New York this winter. "True," said the little lady, who looked pretty enough herself to need a chaperone, "how long ago it's getting to be since we grissat on the veranda and saw a federal colonel with a squad of cavalry come galloping up to ask the nearest road to Lynchburg. Gathered By Reporters of The Consti-tution—What the People Say. Shall the city buy the old capitol property? That is a question which the people are dis-passing on all sides. Public opinion seems to be pretay well diwided on the question. Many citizens favor the old capitol building for a city hall; many favor the purchase of the property by the city as an investment; many oppose the purchase, and give their reasons. There are a good many who think Mr. In-man's offer the most advantageous for the city. This diversity of sentiment is shown in the Interviews here given. The sentiment of the people at large can not be ascertained, of course, from a few talks, but these serve to indicate the bent of opinion.

Mayor Glenn Wants to Buy. Mayor Glenn favors the purchase of the building, and is enthusiastic in his advocacy "I feel certain that the people will vote for the purchase," he said yesterday. "The building can be bought without interfering with the waterworks or the sewers, and I can convince any one of that very easily."

"But it will cost a good sum to fix it up," was suggested by one of the gentlemen to whom the mayor was talking.

"Not ever $10,000r" he answered. "Then too, we can get $35,000 for the stationhouse. and $35,000 or $40,000 for the two fire department buildings on Broad street. We have an offer of $35,000 for the station-house, and Mr. John T. Grant says he'll give us $35,000 for the fire houses, and I think we can get $40,000."

"But that puts the fire department all on that side of town.'

"No, it doesn't. We are now ready to put in two more companies on the south side. The lots have been purchased, and everything is ready for it. Then Cap Joyner says that would be a better place than where he now is By the sale of the buildings we will have paid more than half the debt."

"But for the balance of the —?" "That we can get from our income. Atlanta is growing, and the money will come in. The bailding will do us for ten or fifteen years, and by that time all our internal improvements will be up, and we can put up a half million or a million dollar city hall."

President Oglesby's Views. Mr. J. G. Oglesby, president of the chamber of com neice, the owner of the building in which the city offices are leased, is opposed to the purchase of the old capitol building.

He is not, however, opposed to the building of a new city hall if the need of one is apparent, but it is his opinion that the present quarters occupied by the city are amply suited to the necessities of the case, and about as extensive and expensive as the treasury will

"If the city wants another city hall" said Mr. Oglesby, "it should have one in keeping with its progress and prospects. It should meet our needs present and prospective, and should be of such architectural design and equipment to be an ornament to the city. are proud of our capitol and proud of our county courthouse, and we ought to build a city hall of which we would also be proud-onthat we would take pleasure and comfort in ourselves, and which we would take pride in showing to visiters who come to our city. Atlanta's city hall ought to be supplied with all the modern conveniences and appliances, which the old capitol building does not con tain, and which it would be very expensive to not into it. Even then, the exterior would be anything but symmetrical and in keeping with

o cother public buildings."

Ir. Oglesby was asked about the possibility of difficulty in obtaining as good a location if a new building were decided upon.

"There is no danger but that we will get a location as available as that of the old building. There are plenty of places in the center of the city that could be had; at least we should be allowed to look about first and see if there is not. If we want a city hall we should be allowed to survey the field before we choose a sigte, and not pinned down to accepting or not accepting one particular place, and that, admittedly, in its present shape, not at all desirable.

"It is certain that we must spend a great deal of money in remodelling the capitol building if we buy it. Then, as I say, we want a building we will be proud of. I don't think ald ever be very proud of an old building fixed over. The ultimate aggreate cost of putting the building in proper shape would be equal if not more than it would take to put up a creditable city hall that would not only be an ornament to Atlanta but meet our wants for the next half century.

"The city hall is now well located, with acces, ble and convenient offices, in a building owned by an organization of citizens, by sup porting which the city benefits itself. The nent is very low, especially when it is considered that it helps to pay the bonded indebt edness of a public institution, the immediate members of which are public-spirited, tax-pay ing citizens, merchants, lawvers, doctors in st rance agents, architects, and almost every other branch of business.

"As I said, the chamber of commerce is public institution, doing a good work for the city, and paying rental to it, the city is really fostering its own best interest.

And then the rent paid is low, the total amount per year for the entire building, except the secretary of the chamber of commerce office, being but $2,875. The amount the city pays for the building is $4,600, which is reduc-$2,875 by $1,050 received by the city from the sub-lease to the Southern Railway and Steamship association, and by $675 actually paid the

"So you see that is not so much to pay for a building like the chamber of commerce, even to the use of the chamber hall itself, $2,875, a

"But are the city records safe in the build ing?" It is urged they are not. The city has paid considerable money ou for iron safes for the protection of the record and papers, and it is presumed thas there and are amply sufficient for the requirements. They are supposed to give the protection for which they were bought. But I don't say the city should not have a new building for a city hall. I am willing to vote for it, provided it is wanted, that is, I am willing to issue bonds to build a city hall, but am not willing to in-

"Mr. S. M. Inman offers to rent us a build-ing for the same amount of money. I don't know exactly what it would be, but if we want new quarters my judgment is that we had better have new ones out and out. The present one is ample, and if not entirely proof against fire, can easily be made so.

"There is still another reason why the city hall should be built from the growth of the city hall should be built from the growth."

Air. Oglesby said he, of course, was anxious of see the interests of the chamber of connerce prosper, but would not have it fostered at the inconvenience of the city. He was simply opposed to putting a large amount of money into an old and probably unsafe building, but

As mayor of the city he gave the situation a care ful study, and since he retired from the office he has kept along with the advancement, The captain is now confined to his residence and has been quite ill. The purchase of the state house was sprung upon the pub-lic since his illness began, but at his home he has watched the developments closely. From the incep-tion he has favored the deal, and yesterday showed his faith in it by a proposition to Hon Albert Howell, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds. During the day the captain sent for Mr. Howell, and when the alderman called at the English residence he was shown into the sick room. The captain was in bed, but held out his hand, saying:

"Mr. Howell, I have sent for you for two reasons. First, I want to congratulate you for the good work you have done for the city in trying to secure the old state house for a city hall. I have watched it all closely through the papers, and I say to you now that you have done exactly right."

Mr. Howell thanked the captain for his

MR. PETER LYNCH: "I think the city night to buy it. I don't think we can afford to miss such a bargain. The city will certainy need it for some purpose, and to let the pportunity pass would be a mistake, in my nior. Our credit is good for $130,000 yet, and I think the bonds ought to be issued. I shall vote for the sewer bonds, too."

CAPTAIN W. H. BROTHERTON: "I am not very favorably impressed with the old building. True, we need a city hall, but I favor purchasing a vacant lot and build one to suit our purposes for the next ten years to come. It looks to me like it will cost about as much o put the old building in order as to build a ew one. Then we can never make out of the old one just what we want. We will need in few years, if the city grows as it has been growing, a central police station and two district stations at least. When we do build we ought to have a city hall that will be an orna

MR. I. S. MITCHELL: "I den't like the lea. There is too much of that building, and it is not adapted to the uses of the city. It will cost $81,000 to put it in order before they can go into it. We ought to have a building more suitable. Why, if they purchase it, they will be doubting its safety for holding meetings, in less than six months. I hope the sewer bonds will pass."

Colonel W. M. Bray: "I think it would be a very safe investment for the city, and a good place for the recorder's court, city offices, and so on. I think, upon the whole, the plan is a very good one."

Mr. H. A. BOYNTON: "My mind is unde cided as to the propriety of the purchase. I believe, as an investment, it is a good one, and it is simply a question as to whether the city shall invest in real estate or not. I doubt if the building could be properly utilized, but if it were removed the site is all right for the purposes indicated. As I said, there are strong arguments on either side, and my mind is not fully decided."

MR. L. B. NELSON: "I am in favor of buying it. If I had the money I would not hesitate to buy it for myself. What is a good investment for me is a good investment for the city. It would accommodate us for ten or lifteen years, then we could sell it and build or fifteen years, then we could sell it and build a magnificent new building that will last us for all time. I don't believe the city is in a financial position to build such a city hall as we ought to have, and yet I don't say that the old capitol will suit as well as a new building, but the interest, on the money invested would be little more than the rent we are now paying. If we but it we will have better quarters than now, and also a good investment."

COLONEL P. L. MYNATT: "I think to buy the building would be a capital idea if it is safe. I am inclined to believe that the walls safe. I am inclined to believe that the walls can be made all right, and if that is so the city would hardly go amiss in buying it, though I must confess it is pretty difficult for me to decide that way in the face of the proposition made by Mr. Inman."

MR. G. T. Dodd: "Since Mr. Inman made his proposition I am in faver of that, though I was in favor of purchasing the building on first thought. It is cheap at the price asked, but the city ought to have a new city hall adapted to its needs: It will take an additional $50,000, bond issue to put the old capitol in any sort of the city could do. It is a good investment, and we ought to buy it. That is the way I'll and we ought to buy it. That is the way I'll vote."

MR. HARRY KROUSE: "It is the best thing

Mr. John Colvin: "My vote will be cast to kill the scheme. We want a new building, and Mr. Inman's proposition suits me."

Mr. L. C. Welch: "Put me down for a new city hall. The old capitol is mighty good property, but it wont suit Atlanta for a city hall." Mr. R. F. MADDOX: "The purchase of the old

As far as an investment is concerned, the purchase would be excellent. But for a city hall, I think we should have an ornamental building. All the other cities of the south make their public buildings one of their attractions, and I don't see why Atlanta, the leading city of the south, shouldn't have the finest city hall of any of them. If the city moves into the old capitol they may remodel the lower floor, but they will never build a new edifice. I think Mr. Sam Inman's proposition the best. Let the city buy the land and he will put up a handsome three-story city hall." Brought Within Narrow Limits.

ATHENS, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The Publication of a statement from Bill Pledger, in today's Constitution, concerning the High Shoals distillery disturbance, created a great deal of comment on the streets of Athens. The way in which it brought Editor Gantt, of the Banner, into the muss, was characteristi of the negro who gave utterance to the state-ment. MR. PAUL ROMARE: "I don't think the old capitol is the right place for a city building. It ought to be on this side of the track near the court house." story as being given him by a reliable gentle man of Clarke county. This statement is to be substantiated very easily.

THE PART THAT PLEDGER PLAYED. The fact goes without denial that Pledger's nouth was in the affair, and that he had so thing to do with the negro gauger's appointment. It also cannot be denied that he was to use his influence to get a white gauger for the Ridgeway distillery. As to whether the money question passed between Pledger and Mr. Ridgeway, seems to be the question to be solved. Was the offer made by Pledger to Mr. Ridgeway to secure him a white gauger for the sum of fifty dollars? Pledger seems, in his statement, to raise a question of veracity on the affair. Now, who is the question be tween?

THE BEER IS PUT ON RIDGEWAY. The card of Mr. Carter is brought into the ring, and Deputy Collector Murray's card is also used. What does Mr. Murray say? He repeats most emphatically that Mr. Ridgeway told him that Pledger had offered to get him a white gauger for fifty dollars. He says he is willing to make affidavit to this fact, and the affidavit of Mr. Murray is worth something. He is a government officer, and his stand may cost him his office, if, indeed, Pledger is bos of republican politics in this section, but he is determined to serve only in a manly manner and act as a gentleman

THE COLLEGE JOKE

To Be Put Under Severe Restraint in the Future.

ATHENS, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The liberty of the College Press is, in all probability to be restricted next term. At least such is the outlook at present. The publication of college jokes in the college paper has been under discussion for some time, and it is whispered that at the next meeting of the board of trustees a new law will be passed which will throw a damper over the ludicrous and satirical nature of the college editors, and will effectually suppress the college joke. Last commencement the University Bumble Bee flew into our midst in a serene manner and several and he could not entertain any proposition that looked to his waiting on the purchaser, or any parties to whom the purchasers' bid had been transferred for a longer period than ten days. He claimed that he had no discretion to give such a credit. He would, however, take the mencement the University Bumble Bee flew into our midst in a serene manner and several severe stings were inflicted. Henceforth these, too, will be stopped. However, a movement is on foot to supply other needs of the paper. among which is to be a couple of prizes for the best editorial and literary work. This will stir the boys up to a higher spirit of emulation and the Reporter will boom more than ever.

Much Ado About Nothing. ATHENS, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]-The girls who were supposed to have eloped and gone to Whitehall to be married, have been heard from. They are in Macon at work in a factory there, and if anything can be seen of their husbands it cannot be found out. Evidently they just ran off for a change, and it was not an elopment. They will probably remain in their new home in Macon, and not re-

Which Will Put Passengers in Birmingham By 3 O'clock-Other News of the Railroads.

Here is still better news about the morning train over the Atlanta and West Point railroad. General Manager Tyler has decided that he will have the morning train leave Atlanta in time to make the Columbus connection at Opelika at 10:30 o'clock. This will put THE CON-BTITUTION in Birmingham at about 3 o'clock In the afternoon, where it now gets there at B:30 at night.

Not only this, but this morning train opens up a new route to Birmingham, which will no doubt become a very popular one, and will de-prive the Georgia Pacific of the monopoly that it now holds in the Birmingham business Under existing schedules, all passengers arriv-Ing in Atlanta after 10 o'clock at night must stay here until 1:30 o'clock at night must stay here until 1:30 o'clock next day, if they want to go to Birmingham, there being no morning train on the Georgia Pacific. Under the new schedule of the Atlanta and West Point road, passengers for Birmingham can leave Atlanta over that road in the morning, and arrive in Birmingham by about 3 o'clock in the evening, making connection a Opelika with the Bruns wick and Western for Birmingham. This will no doubt become a very popular schedule to the latter place. The Birmingham morning mail from Atlanta will also be sent by this schedule

General Manager Tyler officially aunounces the following schedule: No. 54, leave Atlanta at 6 a. m., arrive at Opelika at 10:25 a. m. Leave Opelika at 2:15 p. m., arrive at Atlonta at 6:35 p. m.

This schedule goes into effect next Sunday.

The North and South Surveying Corps. GUYTON, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The surveying corps of the North and South Short line, which began work at Ku-klux Ferry, on the Savannah river, last week, is now encamped at Guyton. They are running on the line of west 28, south, which struck almost the center of the town of Guyton. They have been delayed at Guyton and vicinity to make other surveys, so as to take their line to the outskirts of the town, where they have a more desirable crossing of the Central railroad, with better depot facilities. It is understood that the work is being done by the Florida Improve-depot facilities. It is understood that the work is being done by the Florida Improvement and Construction company, which is backed up by English and northern capital. President Whaling, of Jacksonville, Fla., has joined the surveying corps at this place and has carefully gone over the territory adjacent to Guyton, and is very favorably impressed with the country.

They claim that this road is a Florida enterprise seeking a short and direct outlet to New York, which is 162 miles shorter than any other route.

other route.

They ask only a 200 feet right of way, and say the people along the line of the projected road readily consents to give it.

The people of Effingham, and especially Guytonians, rejoice in the prospects of another road which taps the best part of the county and will develop lands which have laid dormant for a century.

Inspecting Railroad Bridges.

MACON, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Superintendent Hudson, of the Atlanta division of the East Tennessee railway, arrived in Macontoday from an official visit to Brunswick, accompanied by E. J. Sanford, president of the Knoxville and Ohio railroad, a branch of the Knoxville and Onlo railroad, a branch of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia.

Mr. Sanford is also recompanied by his son and daughter. They took a carriage drive over Macon today, and were greatly pleased with the beautiful and progressive city.

Superintendent Barnes and President San-

Superintendent Barnes and President Sanford have inspected the read's bridges over the Oemulgee, which must be converted into draws by July 1st, so as to be ready for the opening of the river to navigation between Hawkinsville and Macon. The road proposes to make the change just as soon as possible.

Hon. Walker Jordan, one of the commissioners of Pulaski county, is also in Macon today. He reports that the commissioners held a meeting yesterday to discuss the best plan to change the county's bridge over the Oemulgee at Hawkinsville. A representative of the King fron Bridge company, of Ohio, met in conference with them to submit a bid for the work. The present desire and purpose of the commissioners is to raise the bridge several feet, and also raise the approaches of the bridge. This plan is cheaper than to make a bridge. This plan is cheaper than to make a draw, and is practicable. The commissioners will meet Lieutenant Carter at Macon very soon to decide on plans. The Union Point and White Plains Road.

Spara, Ga., March 19.—[Special.]—Capta n John C. Hart, president of the Union Po ut and White Plains railroad, accompanied by Messrs. MoPherson and Martin, engineers, has just returned from Tennille, Ga., from a preliminary tour, made by him, together with the gentlemen named, of the proposed line of extension of the Union Point and White Plains railroad in Sparts to Tannille. There Plains railroad in Sparta to Tennille. They express themselves as charmed with the country along the route contemplated. Captain Hart assures eur people that he is in earnest, and means business in this matter; and, while properly reticent about his plans which he is maturing, says he will give the people of Hancock and Washington counties an opportunity of which they cannot fail to avail themselves as to the building of the line.

avail themselves as to the building of the line. The captain impresses us as a strict business man who has grasped the railroad situation of this section and is not slow to see the magnificent opening for his enterprise, as heretofore related in The Constitution. The road if built will give Sparta short lines to Atlanta, Athens and Savannah.

The Road From Rome to Capton

The Road From Rome to Canton.

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—
Our people are becoming interested in the new railroad from Rome to Canton or Gainesville.
The Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus people say they will extend, but have not investigated our route. Our citizens hope they will investigate our section before locating their line. We know that our section is the most desirable line of any they have been desirable line of any they have been over, be-sides the section between here and Gainesville can support a railroad better than any other section. Our town does more shipping than any town on the Western and Atlantic railroad. It is over a perfect line, with a solid road bed, through mineral wealth unspeakable.

Macon's Eleventh Road.

Macon, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—Macon now has ten railroads, but it seems probable that she will have the eleventh soon

Macon to Elberton. That is the scheme that was unfolded today to THE CONSTITUTION'S representative. This new road will be the shortest and most direct route from this city to the north. It will be an air line, and will be of inestimable advantage to Macon and the section of country through which it is proposed to be run, while it may be a competit to be run, while it may be a competit to the Covington and Macon road for business at Athens and points beyond. Macon can but be benefited by competition. Competition is the life of trade, and why not of railroads. The more railroads a city has the greater will be her commercial growth, richer her property and happier her people.

Briefly, the route of the new road is this: From Macon to Elberton, Ga. The project is to use the track of the Georgia road from Macon to to Hordock's station. in Jones county.

The road will then be built from Haddock's through Eatonton to White Plains. The people of Eatonton are greatly interested over the project and will render every assistance in their power to help build the road from Eatonton to White Plains. There is already a road from White Plains to Union Point, controlled by the Georgia road, which will be a link in the chain of railway.

From Union Point the road will be constructed to Elberton. In fact, so THE CONSTITUTION is informed, R. T. Martin & Co., the great railroad contractors, already have their men in the field between Union Point and Elberton securing right-of-ways, obtaining subscriptions, etc., preparatory to the building of this link.

The competition to the Covington and Macon road for Athens business and points beyonds arises as follows: The Georgia road already controls a line from Union Point to Athens, so when the road is continued from Union Point to Macon via White Plains, Eatonton and Haddocks, lively competition is sure to come. From Macon to Athens via the Covington and Macon is 107 miles. From Macon to Athens via the proposed new road is 110 miles, a difference of only three miles, which is simply inappreciable, a mere bagatelle.

But competition at Athens and a new road from Macon to Athens is of no consequence whatever compared to other advantages to accrue to Macon by this new line. The greatest benifit and good comes in the road running from Macon to Elberton. At Elberton the new road can connect with the Richmond and Danville, which controls the Elberton Air-Line from Elberton to Athens, and the Richmond and Danville will give the new road a quicker and more direct route to the north than any other line.

This new road will relieve the Richmond and Danville from any desire to be a bidder for the Covington and Macon road, for it will then have a direct route to Macon, and at Macon it will have the choice of connections with several lines to Florida, Thomasville and

Macon it will have the choice of connections with several lines to Florida, Thomasville and with several lines to Fiornas, and other southern points.

But in addition to the Richmond and Danville at Elberton the new road can also find an outlet to the north over the Georgia, Carolina Northern road, which is being built and Northern road, which is designed. and Northern road, which is being built to Elberton and Athens, but asit is generally conceded that the powers that are building the Georgia, Carolina and Northern also control the Covington and Macon road, it is reasonable to suppose the new road will find friendlier relations with the Richmond and Danville.

The power road from Macon to Elberton will relations with the Richmond and Danville.

The new road from Macon to Elberton will be 115 to 120 miles long, whereas it is 147 miles from Macon to Elberton via the Covington and Macon road via Athens.

The possibilities of this road are simply incalculable at this time. It means inestimable advantage and benefit to Macon.

Macon will find her quickest and most direct outlet at Elberton to all Virginia, Carolina, Maryland and northern points. When this road is built, Macon will then have lines to the north via the Central, East Tennessee, Covington and Macon, and Macon and Elberton routes.

It was given out yesterday by a man in position to know, that the auditorship of the Central railroad was to be given Milo S. Free

Mr. Freeman has been for some time auditor of the Southern Railway and Steamship association, and is, in his line, one of the ablest railroad men in this section. Mr. R. E. Mims, the auditor, who resigned recently, intends, it is said, to come to Atlanta and engage in business, making this his future A Rumored Central Scoop.

GRIFFIN, Ga., March 20 .- [Special.]-It is rumored here tonight that the Central has scooped the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus railroad. If true, the scheme will prove a good deal, and a tall feather in the Central cap, in the estimation of those posted in railroad matters.

The Columbus Southern Affairs. Albany, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—The first train came in at noon, bringing Cofonel John Scott, who, it is said, will carry the Columbus Southern into Florida, Mr. Forstner, representing the New York bondholders of said road, Major Green, chief engineer, Captain Parrott, superintendent, Captain Redd, superintendent of construction, Colonel Little, solicitor, and other officers connected with the road.

Columbus Southern Stock. ALBANY, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—A small lot of stock in the Columbus Southern railroad was recently sold in Albany for twenty-five cents on the dollar. At Dawson it recently brought thirty-three cents. Said a prominent railroad man: "I believe that within five years, or less time than that, that this stock will be worth dollar for dollar. This will be a valuable and paying road.' Why Ringold is Mad. RINGGOLD, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—For some reason the stockholders of the Chattanooga and National Park railroad failed to convene in Ringgold today, as advertised. It is believed that road has been scooped by the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus. If it has,

The Women ! God Bless Them!

What would the world be without women? Our mothers, our sisters and our wives—what would there be without them in life worth would there be without them in life worth living? And yet whom do we neglect so cruelly? Our horses and our cattle are carefully sheltered and fed, and their first symptoms of alling given quick attention. But our best friends among the gentler sex grow thin and pale before our very eyes, and because they do not complain we fail to notice it. Oh! let the mist fall from our eyes and let us realize how weak and fragile is woman, and how zealous we should be in their behalfwhen it comes to a question of health. Let us remember that for thie, pale, wan looking women Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla is just their need. It will make their cheeks rosy and they will grow in strength and flesh.—Gainesville Advocate.

is founded upon the fact as promulgated by Professors Sedielat, Pasteur, Koch, Brandtlett, of Germany; Miquel, of France; Geoffray, the eminent Swede; De Geer and Bonnet, of Geneva; the French academy of sciency and other illustrious authorities, that "Disease germs (of which there are one hundred and sixty-five distinct species) may be not only attenuated until nearly harmless, but may be re-vivified by degrees and given the most virulent character." Dr. McLahon says: "The contagious germs which lavs low the physician, is just as particular as the bullet which kills a soldier." Professor Tyndal says: "Disease germs are found floating in the air, destroying man as well as beasts and vegetation." "Few people," says Professor Sedielat, "would believe that there is no man, woman or child, animal or vegetable, that is not more or less impregnated with these deadly germs." They often multiply with alarming rapidity—often by thousands every few minutes. These cause disease, which Royal Germeture destroys, and at the same time it is a fine tonic for the weak and feeble. Germeture removes the cause of the disease, and nature repairs the damage.

(IEORGIA. FULTON COUNTY.—TO THE SUIX perior Court of said county: The petition of
J. C. Kimball, B. B. Crew, J. A. Anderson, J. J.
Barnes, E. M. Roberts, W. A. Gregg, H. C. Leonard, J. D. Procter, W. M. Scott and John E. Tyler, all of said county, shows to the court that petitioners desire to be incorporated by faid court under a charter granting to them their associates and assigns for the term of twenty (20) years, with privilege of renewal, the powers and privileges with the liabilities and duties hereinafter set out, towit:

NAME.

porate name of the "Georgia Co-operative Loan Company," and that as such company they may have the right to make and use a common sea, the right to contract and be contracted with in the scope of the business to be conducted by said company as hereinafter defined, to sue and be sued, to elect officers and make by-laws, and exercise such other powers as are usual and incident to similar corporations.

CAPITAL

ercise such other powers as are usual and incident to similar corporations.

Petitioners desire to use a capital stock not to exceed five million dollars to be accumulated in the manner hereinafter stated, and to have the privilege of beginning business when the sum of twenty thousand dollars is actually subscribed to the capital stock of the company.

The capital stock of the company.

The capital stock will be divided into shares of the maturity value of one hundred dollars each.

Not less than two (2) nor more than two hundred (200) shares shall be taken, or owned, at any time by any one stockholder of said company.

The shares shall be paid for in installment, the first finstallment of one dollar per share to be paid at the first meeting of the stockholders, and subsequent installments of fity (50) cents per share per month for one hundred months or until the installments paid in with interest receipts, and other earnings shall aggregate the value of one hundred dollars per share.

Petitioners dessire also the power to issue paid up stock on which interest will be paid, upon such just terms as may be fixed by the by-laws of the company. And petitioners dessire the power to issue different series of the stock of such company monthly or at such longer intervals as the by-laws may provide and to fix in such by-laws the time for the maturity of each of such series.

BUSINESS.

The object of the incorporation prayed for is to establish for petitioners and their associates a suitable method of effecting small regular savings to combine such savings and to invest them so as to earn interest, by loaning them upon real estate and other security to stockholders of the company upon the terms and in the manner usually practiced by building and loan associations, the system of repayment by monthly installments covering the principal with added interest usually enforced by such associations, being the one to be employed by the company. It is proposed also, as one of the objects of this incorporation to aid its members in the erection, improvement and purchase of homes. It is also desired that the company may have power to make loans to its stockholders upon the shares of stock held by them to the amount of actual cash on maturity value of their shares upon such terms as the by-laws may prescribe.

The principal office of said company shall be in the city of Atlanta, Friton county, Ga., but peri-tioners desire to have power to establish branch offices elsewhere in Georgia, and throughout the United States in the discretion of the board of directors.

[B-LIABILITY.

There shall be no liability of stockholders of such company for the debts or liabilities of the company beyond the amount of the unpaid subscription of such stockholder to the capital stock of the company.

OFFICES.

OFFICERS. The officers of the company shall be such as the by-laws prescribe and their respective duties, the bonds to be given by them, and their compensation shall be regulated by the by-laws to be adopted by such company.

The general management of the company's business shall be in the board of directors, to be seven in number, and to be chosen by the stockholders at their first meeting, and at the regular yearly stockholder's meeting thereafter.

MR. SPEAIRE'S FUNERAL.

Laid to Rest By Loving Hands Yesterda Afternoon

The funeral of Mr. J. H. Speaire occurred at the residence of his father, Judge Speaire at No. 174 West Mitchell street, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by relatives and friends of the family.

Mr. Speaire was a young man of much pron ise, and his early death is deplored by a large circle of friends, whose earnest sympathies are with the young wife in her sorrow, and the pa rents of the young man to whom he was ever dutiful son and an object of paternal fondnes and devotion.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell, of the Third Baptis church, conducted the services in a beautifu and touching manner, and the remains wer laid to rest in Oakland.

Funeral of a Child.

The funeral of little Aurelian Cooledge of curred at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Cooledge, No. 40 Merritt's avenue, at 3 o'clock yesterday. There were many friends of the bereaved family present to join in words of condolence to the afflicted family.

The services were beautifully rendered, and the tiny form of the beloved baby boy was borne to Oakland cemetery and laid tenderly to rest by loving hands.

Asleep With Mother.

Yesterday morning the infant child of Patrolman J. T. Waites, died at his home, No. 12 Hills avenue. Only a few days ago the mother was called away, after a long and painful illness, and now the baby sleeps by its mother's side, in the burying ground at Forrest Station, where the body was sent yesterday for interment.

Mr. Waites has had a hard time of it during the last few weeks, and the hearts of many sympathising friends go out to him in his dark hour of trial. He is one of the most faithful and efficient officers on the police force, and this double bereavement is a cruel blow.

A Baby's Death. Little Horace Abbott, the eleven-months old baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Hendricks, died at the residence, No. 22 Houston street, yesterday afternoon. The funeral will occur today. The hearts of their many friends beat in tender sympathy with the bereaved parents tried in the state courts.

Arson, it will be remembered, is punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and the matter is a very serious one indeed. The cases are all aggravated ones, and where the charge of arson can be fully established it is hardly probable that a recommendation to mercy will come back with the verdict.

In other words, seven of these prisoners already captured are to be tried for their lives. Against two of them the evidence is almost conclusive. These are Lansdown and Forester.

JOHN FITZGERALD, Observer. To Young Mothers,

Especially those who are for the first time to undergo woman's severest trial, we would say a few words! We offer you, not the stupor caused by chloroform, with risk of death for yourself or your dearly beloved and longed-for offspring, but "Mother's Friend," a remedy which will, if used as directed, invariably alleviate, in a most magical way, the pains, horrors and risks of labor, and often entirely do away with them. Its ingredients are absolutely harmless, and the most ignorant person could not possibly do any harm with it, either to mother or child. Should be used a few weeks before confinement. Write Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga. Sold-by all druggists

Bradfield's Female Regulator Has won, on merit alone, a widespread and enduring reputation. We do not claim for it the impossible, or that it will cure every disase to which woman is subject. It is a combination of vegetable agents known to act specifically upon the female organs, the result of the experience of one who made these diseases the study of a life time. Taken according to directions, the organs awake to new life and energy, carry off the impure blood through the natural channel, consequently leaves the woman free from pain at these times, and causes her to look forward no longer to each month with dread and anguish. Bradfield Regulator Co., Atlanta, Ga. Sold by all drug-

Mother of a Fine Boy.

Three months before my babe was born, I was advised to use "Mother's Friend." I procured a bottle, which relieved me so much that I continued its use. My physician and nurse say mine was the most remarkable case they ever witnessed. At 10 o'clock I was in the parlor playing on the piano, feeling per-fectly well, and by 2 o'clock the mother of a fine boy. My recovery was rapid. I used "Mother's Friend" on my breasts, as directed, and had no trouble with them whatever.

MR. NEWTON TALKS.

HE TELLS WHY HE HAS INSTITUTED THAT SUIT.

He Wants $200,000 from the E. T. V. & G. and Writes to The Constitution Ex-plaining Why.

"I will proceed against the railroad in the United States court just as near the beautiful orange groves of southern California as possible," says Mr. Arthur G. Newton, the disap-pointed bidder for the Okefeenokee swamp property, who will sue the East Tennessee

Mr. Newton writes to THE CONSTITUTION, giving in full the story of his experience at

"I went to the Okefeenokee swamp," he says, "and made a careful examination of the property. Before that, I had talked at length with Mr. E. Y. Clark, who was editor of THE CONSTITUTION in 1875, and who organized the party to explore Okefeenokee "After an examination of the property, I started back to Atlanta. At Jesup my train stopped before it got within two hundred and fifty feet of the depot. I got off, carrying my hand baggage to the depot. I asked for the agent, who was pointed out to me, and asked him the state of the him about the Atlanta train. He pointed out the East Tennessee train, which was standing then on the other side of the train I had just left. I then asked if it would not stop in front of the depot as it passed. He said it would. I asked for the operator and inquired the rate on an eightyword message. He started in to look up the rate, and just then the train started.

"I picked up my baggage and tried to get on the train, but could not. The train did not stop nor slack up in the least in front of the depot, and from the time I made inquiry at the depot for the Atlanta train, it was not possible to get to this train before it got under motion and dangerous to attempt to get on.

"I then immediately informed Superintendent E. H. Barnes of the situation, but he refused to try to put me in Atlanta. Then I wrote a notice, (of which I have press copy) and served it on him in the courtroom in which I stated that I should hold his company in $200,000 damages unless he put me in Atlanta by 8 o'clock in the morning, which he refused to do. Therefore, it was impossible for me to reach Atlanta in time to put in-a bid for the Okefeenokee

Mr. Newton gives Los Angeles, California, as his home and winds up his letter with the statement that he will institute his suit against STRUCK BY LIGHTNING. The Residence of Mr. W. A. Carsely Struck Yesterday Morning.

Lightning got in its work yesterday morning.
Mr. W. A. Carsely lives on West Fair street. His father is an invalid, being afflicted with paralysis. Yesterday morning Mr. Carsely got up and built a fire in his own and his father's room, and then lit the fire in the kitchen stove. Just about that time the thunder storn broke over the city with terrific violence

It was nearly daylight, and Mr. Carsely went into his father's room and began assisting the old gentleman to dress He was just fastening on his father's shoes when a loud clap of thunder, followed by a blinding flash of lightning, caused the windows to rattle, and Mr. Carsely heard a crash in the kitchen.

Going in there, he found things in a bad shape. As he describes it:
"The lightning struck the flue and ran down into the stove, knocking the door out and scattering the things generally. It then made a search up the room, and finding nothing to strike it went back to the stove and climbins up the pipe knocked the brick flue into lint flinders. I tell you, it was a shocking affair, for a little while, and I felt good when I found that no more serious damage had been done. It was a strange freak of the lightning, and the wonder is that it hadn't torn up the kitchen."

My stomach and digestive organs were in a chronic state of disorder and my liver and bowels so torpid at times that I had to resort to the most drastic cathartics, which would always leave me in a delicate position. I suffered from general debility and my whole system became deranged. Sick headaches and violent crumps in vy stomach tem became deranged. Sick headaches and violent cramps in my stomach were common, as also frequent skin eruptions, and no woman suffered from the weaknesses of our sex as I did. I was under treatment of severel physicians and also used a much advertised sarsaparilla without the least apparent relief, but instead my health became worse. I reluctantly consented to try Bull's Sarsaparilla. The first dose convinced me it was stronger than any other and I felt a warmth through my whole system. Before I had finished the first bottle I began to improve. I have only taken five bottles, and now my appetite is splendid, my bowels regular, and my digestion as good as it ever was. My headache and other troubles have ceased and I am better than I have been for ten years.—Ann L. Cooke, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

THE REVERED DEAD.

HOW THE HONORED LIVING RE-SPECT THEIR MEMORY.

The Memorial Day Committee Publishes the Official Programme for April 25th, 26th, and 27th-What Will Be Done.

In honor of our dead! Three days are set aside this year for the observation of Memorial Day. The committee of arrangements publishes its official programme for the three days as follows: In order that the plan and programme for the eunion of confederate veterans on April the 25th 26th and 27th in Atlanta may be correctly under-stood, and with the request that all newspapers in the south who feel an interest in this quarter centenary reunion of the old soldiers, give us their help by publishing free of charge this notice.

We state the following as the plan and propramme, which, as far as can now be determined,

Atlanta cannot be expected to banquet, or feast, or entertain all the honored guests who will probably be within her limits on this occasion. It is expected, however, that many of the old soldiers visiting the city will find here personal friends, at whose houses they will be expected to stay, and that on the evening of the 26th many of our homes will be thrown open for a general reception.

A rate of one fare from all points south of the Potomac and Ohio and east of the Mississippi, between the dates of the 24th and 28th of April. Many general officers have accepted an invitation to be here, and others can be reasonably ex-pected, who cannot tell at this date positively. and the old soldiers may expect to meet of their old commanders the following: General Joseph E. Johnston.

General Beauregard. General Longstreet.

Gordon, Lawton, Colquitt, Hampton, Butler, Rosser, Young, Tige Anderson, Sorrell, R. J. Henderson, and many others.

An encampment of two hundred and fifty wall tents, able to accommodate easily four men each, will be pitched on Thursday, the 23d, in or near Grant's park, on the line of the Metropolitan dummy Line, which line is expected to be extended by the 26th, to the Confederate Veterans' This encampment will be under the command of General Robert J. Henderson, and Dr. Charles D'Alvigny is chairman of the special committee in charge of the encampment, to whom all communi-cations from companies of confederates asking for tent room or other information, ought to be It is to be hoped that wherever as many as twen-iy-five old confederates can get together they will do so, elect a commanding officer, apply for tent room, and report to General Henderson on their arrival. They can bring their rations or be sup-alied on the grounds at reasonable rates. They can use the tents from Friday morning until Sunday night. Confederate badges will be sup-pled to all who come. pled to all who come.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock the corner stone of the Confederate Home will be laid with the usual Masonic ceremonies. In the afternoon in address by some old solder will be delivered, and procession formed of confederate veterans, mounted and dismounted, the Lodies' Memorial association escorted by unithe Ladies' Memorial association, escorted by uniformed ranks of the secret societies and of the military, cavalry, infantry and artillery, which will proceed to Oakland cemetery, where the graves of the confederate dead will be decorated and an artillery salute fired.

The military of Georgia and adjoining states will be invited, low rates secured, and they will be welcomed and cared for by the military of At-JOHN MILLEDGE.

Avril 25th nort, was submitted to the rate compheaton for excursion rates to Atlanta, Ga., and return, for the reunion of old soldiers, to be held April 26th next, was submitted to the rate committee of this association at a recent meeting, and rates of one first-class limited fare for the round trip were authorized, tickets to be placed on sale April 24th and withdrawn on the departure of trains scheduled to reach to Atlanta during the forenoon of April 26th, and to be limited to a continuous passage in each direction, with extreme limit April 28th, 1890.

At the suggestion of Colonel Milledge, I have submitted to our members, by circular, an application for jower rates for military companies traveling in uniform from certain points in the south, and will advise you in regard thereto as soon as a full vote can be had. Yours very truly, M. Slaughter, Assistant Commissioner.

AT THE THEATER.

The Pearl Melville company gave matinee and night performances yesterday, with "The Queen's Evidence" as the bill.

The company is one of much more than ordinary The company is one of much more than ordinary excellence. Few popular price companies in the country are so good, this being true of both star and support. Miss Melville has proved herself an actress of decided versatility, and of undoubted ability, and she receives uniformly good supports Of course, there is nothing great about the company, but it is a good one and has given real enjoyment to those who have seen its performances. those who have seen its performances.

Tonight the bill is "The Danites." Popular prices.

Lewis Morrison in "Faust." Monday and Tuesday, at night and matinee, that excellent actor will appear in a great spectacular production as "Faust." A good company, a cardoad of scenery, a skillful application of the last discovered effects of electricity will make of the performance one of the most remarkable ever given on our stage. It is impossible to render the great scene on the summit of the Brocken with more realistic and dazzling effects than it is done by Lewis Morrison. The sight of that scene alone is worth the money paid for admission. This production of "Faust" is a great aristic success and doubly made so by the excellent acting of the star and company. The "Marguerite" is Miss Rosabel Morrison, the daughter of the star, a sweet and beautiful young lady who captivates all the hearts and personifies the heroine in an admirable manner. This is the second year of the play on the road and since its first appearance its popularity and success have continually increased. Although everycody knows the story of Faust and Marguerite, it seems anew story in the way it is presented, and one seems never to be tired of the grandeur with which it is played and acted.

A CURIOUS PHENOMENON.

A Spot in Chattahoochee County Where Rain Falls Perpetually. D. R. Parkham tells of a curious phenome non in Chattahocchee county—a place where rain falls perpetually. The spot is located on a little knoll in a thin wood on the Shipp place, two miles from Thad. Mr. Parkham says the discovery was first made last Thurs-day, and that rain has been falling steadily on the knoll since that time. The downfall covers a space of fifty square feet. This space is perfectly wet, and the leaves on the ground are full of water. Mr. Parkham says he visited the place with G. A. McBryde at noon Tuesday. There was not a cloud to be seen in the sky, and the leaves everywhere, except on the square, were as dry as tinder. "I stood with the space between me and the sun," said Mr. Parkham, "and saw the raindrops coming steadily down from the sky. I held out my handkerchief and it was soon saturated with water." Mr. Parkham says that everybody who hears about the phenomenon is skeptical, but that the many who have visited the place in the last few days have gone away convinced. No one has yet offered an explanation of the mysterious rainfall. Mr. Parkham suggests that some powerful unknown substance attracts the moisture from the atmosphere. are full of water. Mr. Parkham says he visited

Mr. Barwald has had it handsomely framed, and it will be on exhibition today in the windows of M. Rich & Bros., on Whitehall street. Mr. Joe Hirsch, who has taken an active interest in the building of the hospital, has been asked to take charge of the raffle, and the picture ought to bring fully

That Miss Lazaron is an artist of rare ability is shown in this exquisite piece of work, for a more faithful likeness of Mr. Grady has never been made. Miss Lazaron studied under the celebrated crayon artist, Otto Vernino, of New York, and her work does great credit to her celebrated tutor.

EISEMAN BROS,

17 and 19 Whitehall St.

We extend to all a cordial invitation to visit our Tailoring Department, which we have instituted in addition to our already extensive establishment, being acknowledged the leaders of the South as Outfitters.

We propose to make the Tailoring Department one of the principal features of our business, on a first class standard in every particular.

Our facilities enable us to import direct, thereby securing all the latest novelties as they appear, and also save the high tariff paid to importers.

We have been fortunate to secure the services, as cutter, of a gentleman from London, England, who has had years of experience in the English metro-polis, and shall only employ the best talent in con-structing the garments. Respectfully, ALBANY, Ga., March 20.—[Special.]—An interesting industry here is that of the Albany pottery. It is economically managed and is a remunerative industry. To see the lumps of clay gradually assuming shape under the skill-ful hands of the potter, until some pretty flower pot is produced, is a never-ending source of in-terest to visitors. One day will be devoted to the manufacture of such ware, another to jars, another to churns and many to jug making. The latter filled with Albany liquor, find their way to all the prohibition counties in south Georgia. Occasionally, when there is a special culture boom here, such as an art and floral fair or a session of the Georgia Chautauqua the deft fingers of the potter turns out pretty vases in antique shapes, such as the Pompeii an, with its bulb-like vase and cylindrical neck, the flat pilgrim vase, the etruscan, and many other cuts and ancient designs. These in turn are decorated by the fair hands of the ladies, and made into things of beauty.

It is queer to see how the stoneware is made. Great barrels of dry mud are brought all the way from Albany, New York. This mud is the precipitate of the Hudson river, and is dredged up from the bottom of this lovely stream. The jars and jugs are coated with it. They then have a pretty bluish tinge which change by the intense white heat of the furnace into the shining and glossy darkness of the common jug.

"Living in San Francisco today are two persons whose strange experiences have long been a mystery to me. Two years ago a Boston gendeman came out to the coast. He brought with him his companion, a young woman in the last stages of consumption. She was pret-ty and talented and ten years younger than her escort. I am of the opinion that a sort of platy and talented and ten years younger than her escort. I am of the opinion that a sort of platonic love existed between them.

"Three times to my own knowledge the young woman has apparently possed out of this life into the other world, and twice have preparations been made for her burial. On one occasion her companion was out of the city. During his absence she was taken suddenly with a sinking spell, and the landlady became greatly alarmed. In two hours the invalid was pronounced dead by the ladies in the boarding house who were in attendance upon her. As the day advanced the landlady, seeing no signs of the gentleman's return, visited an undertaker's near by, and preparations were made for laying out the corpse.

The body was cold and stiff when the undertaker arrived. He viewed the corpse and went back to his shop for his assistant. During his absence the missing companion of the dead young woman arrived upon the scene. It was now about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. On being informed of her death five hours before, the gentleman uttered an exclamation of surprise. Then rushing up to the room where the body lay he closed the door behind him and turned the key. When the undertaker returned he was refused admission. Twe hours after the gentleman emerged from the room and ordered two suppers sent to the apartment.

Later the young lady was seen sitting apright in bed, eating heartily. Her companion had brought her back to life by a method of rubbing and physical manipulation known only to himself. Twice after this he repeated the performance. Three times to my knowledge has this young man brought the young woman back from the dead. She lives here today, still an invalid, and is liable to die again at almost any moment.

IF CHRIST SHOULD RETURN.

He Was the First Perfect Democrat the World Had Seen.

Junius Henri Browne in the Arena. The churches of the advanced order have recently permitted Jehovah to remain in the background and have discreetly brought forward Jesus-no two beings could be more antipodal-as their deity and examplar. His life as recorded in the new testament, whether he be regarded as man or God—there is not the slightest probability that he ever claimed to be divine— is so grand and beautiful as to be a odel for universal imitation.

The advanced churches, fearing the repulsive effect of lessons drawn from the old testa-ment, now incline mainly to the precepts of Jesus. While they are insisting on his gentleness, his goodness, his self-denial, his unstinted compassion, they seem to forget how inconsist-ent is their preaching and their practice. If Christ should return to the nineteenth century world, and try to visit the fashionable churches of New York, Boston, or any of the leading cities of the country, how would he be received? Would he not be denied admission, in his plain garb, with his simple ways?

The sleek sexton and his assistants would not consider him a gentleman—and he would not be such, as they apprehend the term. They would be afraid to show him to a pew, even if would be arrant to show finite to a pew, even if they should pity his pale, pensive face, and wearied air. He would form a strange contrast with the elaboratety carved wood work, the decorated ceilings, the stained glass windows of the sumptuous interior. Those churches would be no place for him, and he would recognize the fact to tree. Indeed, he would recognize the fact at once. Indeed, he would not go there. He was the first democrat; he would seek the poorest quarter of the town, and address himself to the common people. He would incur great risk of arrest as a tramp, but he who had been crucified would come preaved for rejection and revilement.

tramp, but he who had been crucified would come prepared for rejection and revilement. He would not be put to death again—thanks to the growth of humanity, in spite of theology—but in his incognite he would find the orthodox world remarkably unappreciative, if not inimical. It is to be feared that he would be forced to find shelter with the infidels and atheists so designated. Orthodoxy and Jesus are irreconciliably dissentient, even at the present day; and yet the self-complacent orthodoxists are convinced that their correlation is complete. is complete.

BEDRIDDEN BY HALLUCINATIONS.

Twenty-five Years of Life Wasted By a Freak of the Mind.

Chillicothe, Mo., Special to the New York World. W. H. Lilly, one of the earliest settlers of Livingston county, has for twenty-five years has kept him confined to his bed.

In 1865, during a slight illness, he was soized with a fear that he would die of heart disease if he attempted to stand up or to raise his head above a certain level. Every possible means was resorted to by his family to drive the idea from his mind, but without success He stubbornly stuck to his couch and refused to be coaxed or frightened out of it.

On one occasion his wife had a lot of straw piled near the house and then set on fire. The

On one occasion is while had a hot of straw piled near the house and then set on fire. The wind blew the smoke toward the house and the family began shouting fire, and carrying out the ferniture. Lilly was told to run for his life, but he never stirred out of his bed. At another time his favorite daughter, Minnie, was sent away, and Lilly was told that she had been hurt and was dying at a neighbor's house, and that she begged him to come to her. Tears welled from the afflicted man's eyes and his lips twitched with emotion, but he did not move.

After this signal failure no further attempts were made to arouse him, and it was thought he would never leave his bed except for the grave. One day last week, however, the dormant energies of Lilly reasserted themselves as suddenly and mysteriously as they had departed, and he raised his head above the supposed danger line. Dumfoundered at finding no serious results, he raised it still higher and finally sat boit upright. He has now apparently fully recovered and is superintending some improvements on his farm. During his wife's administration of affairs the farm has trebled improvements on his farm. During his wife's administration of affairs the farm has trebled in value, and Lilly is today $40,000 better off than he was when he took to his bed twentyfive years ago.

GREAT DANGER.

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in Regard to Them. When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after-generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I havelaid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many ladies are afficed with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. Respectfully, Dr. R. G. JACKSON.

47½ Whitehall St., Atlanta, Ga. LEGAL SALES.

Notice by the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta of an election to determine the question whether bonds shall be issued by said city for the purchase of the Old Capitol Building.

the Old Capitol Building.

Whereas, the Mayor and General Wouncil of the city of atlanta desire to purchase the old Capitol building on Forsyth and Marietta streets, in said city, for a city hall for said city, and to pay $125,500 for the same in cash on the day after the vote by the qualified voters of said city in favor of the same, or so soon thereafter as can be legally done, for which, bonds of said city are to be issued, bearing interest from date at four per cent (4) per annum, and to be paid in not exceeding thirty years.

Therefore, be it ordained by the mayor and general council aforesaid that, an election shall be held on the twenty-third (23d) day of April, 1800, to determine the question whether said purchase shall be made and the indebtedness incurred for the same as herein above named, and that notice to the people (qualified voters of said city) be published in the Atlanta Constitution, the paper in which the sheriff's advertisements of said county are published, and also in the Atlanta Journal, for the space of thirty days next preceding the day of said election, the interest on said bonds to be paid semi-annually, on the first day of January and July of each year.

If the issue or execution of said bonds is voted by the requisite two-thirds of the qualified voters of this city, then, and before the proposed debt is incurred, an ordinance or ordinances shall be passed providing for the execution or issue of said bonds, and making provision at the same time for the assessment and collection of annual taxes sufficient in amount to pay the principal and interest of said debtas the same becomes payable, as herein above provided: but this shall not operate to increase the annual tax on real estate or personal property beyond the charter rate of one and one-half (1½) per centum-per annum.

At said election will occur on the same iday as the election on ewitten on their ballots "For Old Capitol Bonds," or "Against Old Capitol Bonds," or "or "Against Old Capitol Bonds," or "old Capitol Bonds," or "old

'I certify that the foregoing preamble and the ordinance were adopted by the Mayor and Council of the City of Atlanta, concurred in by the Aldermanic Board and approved by the Mayor of said city on March 19, 1890.

Notice by the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta of the Holding of an Election to Deter mine the Question Whether Bonds shall be Issued by said City.

WHEREAS, THE MAYOR AND GENERAL Council of the City of Atlanta desire to issue two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000) of bonds of said City, for the purpose of increasing the water supply, of said city, and desire also to issue one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) in bonds, for the purpose of paying the city's proportion of the expense of the construction of sewers in said city, and the assent of the qualified voters of said city being necessary thereto.

Therefore, be it ordained by the Mayor and General Council aforesaid, that in accordance with the Constitution and Laws of said State, an election shall be held on the twenty-tbird (25d) day of April, 1890, to determine the question whether said water bonds and sewer bonds, or either series of said proposed bonds, shall be issued by said city, and that notice to the people (qualified voters of said city), be published in The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, the paper in which the Sheriff's advertisement of said county are published, and also in The Atlanta Evening Journal, for the space of thirty days next preceding the day of said election as provided by law, said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four per cent. (4 per cent per annum, and to run not exceeding thirty years from the date thereof, the interest to be paid semi-annually, on the first days of January and July of each kear, and the principals of said bonds to be fully paid off within thirty years from the date of issuance thereof. If the issue of said water bonds, is voted by the requisite two-thirds of the qualified voters of said city, then, and before the proposed debt is bonds, or either of such series of bonds, is voted by the requisite two-thirds of the qualified voters of said city, then, and before the proposed debt is incurred, an ordinance or ordinances shall be passed providing for the issue and sale thereof, and making provision at the same time for the assessment and collection of annual taxes suffi-assessment and collection of annual taxes sun-cient in amount to pay the principal and interest of said defit within thirty years from the date of neurring said indebtedness. But this shall not operate to increase the annual tax on real estate or personal property beyond the charter rate of one and one-half (1/2) per centum charter rate of one and one-half (1½) per centum per annum.

At said election, the voters shall have printed or written on their ballots "For Water Bonds," or "Against Water Bonds," and shall also have printed or written on their ballots "For Sewer Bonds," or "Against Sewer Bonds." And each voter may on the same ballot for or against either water bonds or sewer bonds, or for the one and against the other, or fer both or against both, or may vote with reference to the one and not vote as to the other, as he may desire.

Said election shall be held as municipal elections in this city are held, and conducted in like manner, and in accordance with sections 508 I to 508 M. inclusive. of the code of the state of Georgia.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The stock market was intensely duil throughout the day. There was, during the greater portion of the day, a drooping during the greater portion of the day, a drooping tendency in the general list, though no impres-sion was made upon prices except where the bears were testing, and that to a very limited extent. There was very little in the general list today, but some selling of Union Pacific was done, and no support appeared for the stock from the Boston people, though it yielded only slightly. Missour Pacific was also pressed for sale and shared off to a slight extent, while of the other Gould shares Western Union alone showed the only life and that was weak and losing nearly one per cent, after selling ex-dividend. Sugar refineries was a special eature and moved up at first on expectation that permission to declare dividends would be granted this morning but when the decision was reserved it again fell away. Later, however, the belief that this has been the understanding between the North river refinery people and officers of the trust and that all opposition has been withdrawn, led to an improvement, and stock closed at last night's figures. In the regular list, only Tennessee Coal and Wheeling and Lake Erie stocks showed any real strength, and the first named moved up from 51 to 54½, the rumor being that the Brice-Thomas party had acquired a large block of the stock, and that the late depression has been for the purpose of accumulating stock. Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred rose 2½ per cent, and reacted 1%, but closed with a material improvement. The market finally closed dull and steady, at significant changes for a great majority of the list, the only important differences being advances of 2½ in Tennessee Coal and 1½ in Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, and a loss of 11/4 in Colorado Coal. Sales aggregated 90,000

Local-Market firm; middling 10%c. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, March 20—[Special]—Cable advices from Liverpool state that satisfactory progress is Leing made towards a settlement of the collier strike in England, and the advance in their market today is due to our light receipts, as spinners are expected to become alarmed at the small property of cotton expecting alarmed at the small amount of cotton appearing in sight and rush in amount of cotton appearing in sight and rush in to the Liverpool market to secure their needed requirements. Our market advanced upon the covering of the local Interest, which became alarmed at the strength of the position here and the confident feeling amongst holders. This support has been removed from the market, and no disposition is manifested upon any side to assume a definite stand upon the short side of cotton, the recent decline having shaken out all holders who were unprepared for a decline. Traders therefore were unprepared for a decline. Traders therefor are rather prepared for lower prices tomorrow, though unwilling to back their opinion by fresh Bales. The condition of political affairs in Germany is not with the condition of political affairs in Germany is not with the condition of political affairs. many is not without effect upon the minds of operators. Our market will be governed by the action of the Manchester spinners, fluctuating between a range of prices centering upon 11½ until their actions more clearly indicate the condition of trade as affected by the recent events. HUBBARD, PRICE & Co. The Sun's Cotton Review. The Sun's Cotton Review.

NEW YORK, March 20—Futures opened a little unsettled in tone, though in some cases slightly dearer. The Liverpool report proved much better than anybody expected, and a quick advance of 7@8 points for this crop was the result with the next crop improving less. Then the market became quieter, and the best prices of the day were not paid until near the close, when small receipts were bulletined—a little more than 3,000 bales. The close, however, was barely steady. Cotton on the spot was 1-16c higher.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions. CHICAGO, March 20-Wheat-Trading large, and the market at times excited. A prominent local trader was a heavy buyer, and it is claimed must have added largely to his holdings. Shorts cov-ered freely, and a prominent floor operator bought in a long line which caused a sharp spurt in the market, and helped to carry prices to the outside point. There was good buying on outside account. The market opened 1/2% lower than yesterday's closing, which were the lowest figures of the day, quickly developing strength under active buying, quickly developing strength under active buying, which carried prices up 1½c for May, and then eased off ½c, ruled steady and closed about ½c higher than yesterday. Interest centered in May delivery, and the advance was more marked for this future than for July, while June followed pretty closely the advance for May. The influences which assisted to bring about the sharp advance were lorge clearness of flour from the sea vance were large clearances of flour from the sea-board ports, and predictions that loadings of wheat will be large soon. The movement of winter wheat in the interior points from first hands is reported light, and winter wheat millers from several sec-tions write that they have great difficulty in get-ting wheat to keep their mills running. Advices from California report rain. Crop news continue to be contradictory, and most reports continue to note damage from winter killing. Corn was fairly active and firmer, very fair in-quiry existing for May and July from commission quiry existing for May and July from commission houses, and as offerings were not large, the local crowd being mostly sellers, prices were advanced. The market opened at about the closing prices of yesterday, was firm and gradually advanced \(\frac{1}{4}\mathbb{2}\), (e.) became quiet and inactive, changed but little, and closed \(\frac{1}{6}\), (e.) better than yesterday.

Oats—There was decided increase in the trading in this market, and during most of the session an excited feeling existed, and prices fluctuated sharply. The recent slowness in the market induced heavy short selling for May delivery, and duced heavy short selling for May delivery, and the market became oversold. Light arrivals and small stocks here created considerable uneasiness among the bears, and an attempt to cover resulted in a material increase in the volume of trading, and an increase of %c in prices.

Pork—Trading was only moderate, and the feeling was rather steady. Opening sales were made at 5c decline, but a little inquiry from the short interest caused an advance of 7½@10c. Later, offerings were slightly increased, local manufacturers selling about 5,000 bbls, and prices receded 5@7½c, and the market closed steady at the reduction.
